Firetrucks, ambulances, civil defense units and law enforcement officials from several communities in Pettis County responded to a fire late Thursday night that destroyed the rear portion of the former LaMonte recreation center.

LaMonte Residence Is Damaged in Fire

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LaMonte — Fire destroyed the former recreation hall here Thursday night and threatened to damage adjacent buildings before firefighter brought the blaze under control about 12:30 a.m. Friday. No injuries were reported.

Fire trucks from LaMonte, Green Ridge and the Pettis County fire departments battled the blaze at 111 South Main Street. Firefighters from Whiteman AFB also assisted.

LaMonte Fire Chief Gene Smith said the fire started about 9:45 p.m. at the rear of the structure.

Assistant Fire Chief Dick Mills said Friday that faulty wiring may have started the blaze in either the kitchen or garage portions of the building. He estimated damage to the structure and contents at $6,000.

It was learned the property was recently purchased by Mary Turner, a resident of the state of New York. Her son, Richard McCue, 22, and Carlos Aster, 25, were living in the building but were not present at the time of the blaze. Smith said the building had been vacant for about four years before Mrs. Turner bought it.

Smith said the rear section of the building and the living quarters were a total loss. No adjacent residences to the north or the post office to the south were damaged, it was reported.

Prosecutors Given Anti-Smut Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has primed the nation's prosecutors for a campaign against pornography.

A five-member majority Thursday, anchored by President Nixon's four appointees to the court, added new language to the obscenity issue that seems sure to doom such recent hard-core attention-getters as "Deep Throat," a movie whose reviews frequently contained a scorecard on the number and variety of sexual acts depicted.

But the new obscenity decision may also reach beyond the "adult" bookstore and moviehouse to material intended for larger audiences.

When the high court first grappled with the issue in 1957, obscenity was ruled outside the protection of the First Amendment.

With some detours along the way, the first decision formed the basis for the court's test for determining just what is obscene.

The material, taken as a whole, must appeal to the prurient interest as judged by contemporary community standards, and it must be utterly without redeeming social value, the old test ran.

Thursday, the court abandoned the requirement that the material be utterly without value, substituting instead the question of whether the material constitutes a serious work.

And, the majority held that the standards should be those of the local community, not some abstract national community. The court also held that juries really don't need any help from expert witnesses to make the judgments involved.

Thursday marked the first time since the 1957 decision that a majority of the court has formed a solid block to rule against "hard-core pornography." Chief Justice Warren E. Burger declared.

Burger maintained in the majority opinion he wrote that no one will be "subject to prosecution for the sale or exposure of obscene material unless these materials describe patently offensive 'hard-core' sexual conduct specifically defined by the regulating state law...."

But dissenting Justice William O. Douglas, calling the decision a "sharp and radical break with the traditions of a free society," found that a word such as "offensive" would be subject to a wide range of interpretations by various judges and juries.

"That test would make it possible to ban any paper or any journal or magazine in some benighted place," he said.

By Leading Republican

Nixon Is Accused of Hindering Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican member of the Senate Watergate committee says the Nixon administration has "stepped on" anyone willing to search for the truth about Watergate.

Sen. Lowell O. Weicker Jr., who made the claim Thursday, also said that fired White House Counsel John W. Dean III should be listened to when he appears before the panel. Dean, who has said he discussed Watergate and a possible coverup with President Nixon, will be the lead-off witness when the hearings resume next week.

"I think there is a great deal of credibility to a story that he is going to go ahead and tell, and I think the committee owes it to him to enable him to tell that story in full view of the public," Weicker said on a Public Television show, "Evening Edition." He was interviewed by Martin Agronsky.

"Is his testimony credible? I think it is. 'Nobody's attributing 100-per-cent credibility to him or any other witness, but he's got the guts to stand out there and that's no small thing when you were in his position and had all the pressures that obviously must have existed on this young man at the time to decide that you're going to step forward and tell the story to the American people."

Weicker was the sole opponent of the committee's decision to postpone Dean's appearance for one week last Tuesday because of the summit conferences this week between Nixon and Soviet Chairman Richard Ichord, D-Mo., said he wants to find out why the White House formed the "plumbers" group that burglarized the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971. President Nixon has said he ordered the "plumbers" to plug such news leaks as the secret Pentagon Papers, which Ellsberg gave to newspapers.

In New York, former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the scandal has hurt both parties. He called for limits on how much candidates may spend in their campaigns and urged use of a new provision allowing taxpayers to designate a dollar of their federal income taxes to finance political campaigns.

No Bids For Fuel In State

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri received no bids on a bulk supply of gasoline for state cars and fuel oil at 136 state institutions today.

However, bids were received in isolated cases involving specific counties or institutions.

The bidding did not include the highway patrol and Highway Department, which together have about 2,000 vehicles. They have been contracting for fuel on a zone or troop basis.

The only statewide bid came from Empire Gas of Lebanon at 25.9 cents a gallon for 750,000 gallons of liquified petroleum (LP) gas.

The state is seeking to buy 5 million gallons of fuel, most of it oil. One million of the total is gasoline for vehicles and 750,000 of the total is LP gas. Gasoline for state cars other than the highway patrol and highway department would have to be bought on a commercial basis unless other bids are received.

No contracts will be announced until after the bids are studied, said Herbert Damron, head of procurement for the state.

The contracts would be for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The bids were asked for the state universities except for the University of Missouri. Individual institutions have let their own bids in the past but the state procurement office plans to gradually take over the bidding process for all state institutions.

No bids were received on an offer to 15 companies for providing gasoline at a credit car discount although rejection letters were received from Gulf, Phillips and Texaco.

Gulf offered to sell the state school and hospital 38,000 gallons of diesel oil at 19 cents a gallon for 14,000 gallons of a low grade and 33 cents a gallon for 24,000 gallons of a higher grade.

Gulf offered to sell No. 2 diesel fuel to the St. Louis School for the blind at 17.4 cents a gallon for 4,000 gallons, and to sell the St. Louis State Hospital motor oil at 70 cents for one grade and 72 cents a gallon for another grade.

Williams LP Gas of Moberly bid 21.9 and 23.9 cents a gallon on different grades of LP gas for 24 counties.

National Oil of Springfield bid 11.6 cents and 19.3 cents a gallon on No. 5 and No. 6 fuel oil for 10 counties.

The E. L. Bride Co. of Kansas City said it could supply 350,000 gallons of No. 5-6 fuel oil at the state penitentiary and 40,000 gallons at the Algoa Reformatory but did not state a price, giving President Nixon's recent price freeze as the reason.

Mills said the fire was burning about a half-hour before it was discovered by Paul Steinkuhler, LaMonte mayor. "The building was closed — air tight," said Mills. "If it hadn't been, the damage would have been more severe," he added, referring to the other structures.

Mills said the LaMonte Fire Department battled the blaze for a short time and then requested the Pettis County sheriff's office to summon at least two more fire departments.

Mills said the call for help was made because flames "20 to 30 feet high" threatened the post office building about 20-feet away.

The fire also destroyed an automobile in the garage, Mills said. The gas tank of the vehicle exploded.

He said five ambulances responded to the scene of the fire because one early report indicated "the whole town is on fire." Civil defense personnel also were at the site.

McCue was released on bond from the Pettis County jail Thursday after he was charged in Magistrate Court with felonious assault with intent to do great bodily harm. He allegedly wounded a Tipton man in a fight June 5 in Sedalia.

Voters last November approved registration of all county voters. Mrs. Wilson said 1,600 of the approximately 6,000 county voters have registered to vote.

Voter Registration Drive to Houstonia

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HOUSTONIA — A voter registration drive will be held between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday at the post office here, Pettis County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson said.

Houstonia will be the fourth city to be visited by the county clerk's office recently in connection with county-wide voter registration.

Churches Getting Involved In Labor Confrontations

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A bishop on a picket line...a priest beaten in a labor dispute...a sidewalk religious service for strikers.

These are among incidents marking an increasingly active role by American church leaders in behalf of various groups of striking workers.

The tactics are mostly new, often controversial.

Both Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders have sided with Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers union in its efforts to represent California grape workers, and a growing lineup of bishops are backing demands of strikers at an El Paso clothing plant for collective bargaining rights.

In both cases, the workers are mostly Mexican-Americans.

Although major religious bodies for years have voiced general support for principles of labor organizing rights, they usually haven't become directly involved in specific labor conflicts, as they now are doing.

But in "crisis situations," the confrontation method often is the "best way of delivering the message of Jesus," says the Rev. Dennis J. Geaney, a Chicago priest-educator, after a stint on a picket line outside a supermarket, demanding it sell only UFW-picked grapes.

On the basis of a three-month inquiry by a special commission, the executive committee of the National Council of Churches also threw its support to Chavez' UFW, a stand taken previously by a U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' committee.

When its chairman, Bishop Joseph Donnelly of Hartford, Conn., recently visited pickets at grape ranches in California's Coachella Valley, praying with them and blessing them, he was taunted by ranch guards.

"Go back to your churches!" some yelled. "Quit putting your nose in our business. Stick to religion! Stop supporting the Commie line!"

Two bishops celebrated Mass for 400 grape strikers on the picket line.

In El Paso, a drawn-out strike for union representation by workers at the big Farah Manufacturing Co., a maker of men's pants, has drawn backing of more than a dozen Catholic bishops in addition to El Paso's Bishop Sidney Metzger.

A boycott of the company's products, urged initially by El Paso's Bishop Metzger and San Antonio's Bishop Patrick Flores, also drew support of four Arizona and New Mexico bishops.

The year-long strike against the company reportedly involves 2,000 of more than 8,000 employees.

In the California grape dispute, Chavez' UFW for three years had contracts with grape growers, but when contracts expired this spring, most growers — 30 of them — signed new contracts, not with the UFW, but with the Teamsters Union.

Msgr. George Higgins, a veteran labor expert for the U.S. Catholic Conference, says surveys have shown field workers prefer by almost 10 to 1 to be presented by the UFW.

Meanwhile, in Coachella, Calif., the Rev. John Bank, a priest from Youngstown, Ohio, working with the UFW, was hospitalized after being beaten, allegedly by a guard from a ranch where Teamsters have a contract.

Baptist Church Sponsors Rally

Calvary Baptist Church, 16th and Quincy, will sponsor a youth revival this weekend at the church.

The evangelist will be Steve Easterwood, Raytown, a sophomore at Southwest Baptist College. Dennis Zmek and Rick Gann, both of Raytown, will be in charge of music.

Meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, 7 p.m. Saturday, 10:45 a.m. Sunday and 6:45 p.m. Sunday.

Magazine Features

State Fair 'Tent'

A religious tent at the Missouri State Fair was featured in the July issue of "Together" magazine, a national publication of The United Methodist Church.

The article focused on the activities of the Rev. Melvin E. West, Missouri director of creative ministries of The United Methodist Church. Mr. West is preparing for this year's exhibit at the State Fair, the article said. The tent is under the auspices of the Missouri Council of Churches.

Church News

LaMONT — The Rev. Charles Roof, a Pentecostal minister, will be the speaker at a series of revival meetings beginning 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Harvest Time Tabernacle here.

SWEET SPRINGS — "Twiddling Thumbs!" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Ross E. Haput at the 8 and 10:30 a.m. worship services Sunday at Immanuel Lutheran Church here.

Sunday school and Bible classes will be at 9:15 a.m.

CLARKSBURG — Fifty-four youngsters enrolled in the vacation Bible school at the Clarksburg Baptist Church here last week, with the average daily attendance of 48.4 pupils.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" This will be the subject for members of the First Church of Christ Scientist, 120 East Sixth, this Sunday.

The Golden Text is Proverbs 3:19.

BLACKBURN — St. Paul's United Church of Christ here will hold an open house from 2:30 to 6 p.m. Sunday to honor the 55th wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Lobs. Mr. Lobs is interim pastor of the church.

The Rev. Robert W. Magee will speak on "The Master's Disciples" at the 10:10 a.m. Sunday worship service at the First Christian Church.

The text for the sermon is I Timothy 3:1-17. The service will be broadcast at 11:30 a.m. by KDRD radio.

Dr. W.L. Tompkins, president of Missouri Valley College at Marshall, will be the guest worship leader Sunday at Broadway Presbyterian Church. Dr. Tompkins, a Presbyterian layman, will speak on "Gifts Beyond Price: Gifts of God." Elder R. Richard Parkhurst will assist with the worship service.

The annual all-church picnic will be held at Wickline Park on the Richard Parkhurst farm from 5 to 8 p.m. Sunday.

"Community Union services," which began the last week in March, continue at 7:30 p.m. each Sunday at Taylor Chapel United Methodist Church, Pettis and Lamine.

Comedy Duo Featured In Preview

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC Television network tonight is giving us a one-hour advance taste of what satirists Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber will do in their new Saturday night summer series on ABC.

The series officially starts June 30.

Burns and Schreiber are two very funny guys who've been kicking around for years without much national recognition of their talents.

Their new comedy-variety show probably will rectify this matter. Friday night's offering is a good start, even though it may not always leave you rolling on the floor.

Several skits don't come off — particularly one about a pretentious suburban couple — but the entire hour generally is heads and shoulders above most comedy-variety shows on TV, both in pace and writing.

Canada is the world's fourth largest exporter of farm products.

Cemeteries Are Under New Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed legislation turning over to the Veterans Administration the national cemeteries now run by the Army and providing for several new regional cemeteries.

The VA is directed to come up with a report by Jan. 3 recommending sites for the new cemeteries. VA officials have mentioned 10 possible new cemeteries.

The legislation followed growing complaints about national cemeteries filling fast and closing, thereby forcing burial of veterans in private cemeteries.

The bill authorizes a $150 plot allowance for wartime veterans not buried in national cemeteries, in addition to the $250 burial allowance to which all wartime veterans already were entitled. This is effective for those who die on or after Aug. 1.

Up to $800 will be paid for veterans who die of service-connected causes. They get only the $250 allowance under the old law unless they die on active duty.

The Jan. 3 VA report to Congress is supposed to include a broad study and recommendations on burial benefits in general.

The VA takeover Sept. 1 does not include Arlington National Cemetery, which remains under the Army; cemeteries at 27 military posts; the Soldiers' Home here; the Naval Home in Philadelphia; the Air Force Home at San Antonio, Tex., and at the military academies. Cemeteries under the Interior Department and the Battle Monuments Commission are not included.

The city has had a recreation department since 1950, but the present facilities were not planned until fire struck the old building in 1966.

One out of every 10 people in the city plays baseball with the recreation department's seven baseball and softball leagues.

Games are played each night on the city's three lighted diamonds, except Wednesday and Sunday. Most Neosho churches hold services on Wednesday night.

The department also operates a World War II vintage swimming pool at Ft. Crowder. Almost one in every 20 people in Neosho swim in the pool each day.

The city also sponsors "Art in the Park" each Sunday during the summer and fall. Artists display and sell their works and a different type of music is played each week.

The center itself houses card parties, weddings, political meetings, law enforcement meetings, basketball and volleyball games, women's weight-lifting sessions, religious and Scout meetings and dances.

The recreation department is governed by a nine-member board that operates on a $55,000 budget provided by a 20-cent tax levy. This is in addition to the 15-cent levy that is used to pay off the city's bonds used to finance its $150,000 share of the cost of building the center.

The current director of the center is Dan Rickett, who holds a parks and recreation degree from the University of Missouri.

His assistant is Louis Thomas, who has been with the department for 13 years.

The department will assist with three productions by the Big Spring Little Theatre group this summer and the three-day Big Spring Fall Festival.

The people of Neosho credit City Manager Charles Bell for his work for the department.

Things commence with Burns and Schreiber arriving on stage clad in tuxedos. They obviously are uneasy about wearing such duds.

"Look at this tie," Schreiber grumbles, jabbing a finger at his black bow tie. "I feel like I'm walking around wearing a dead bat."

From there it's on to a plush night club, where Burns tries to give his pal lessons in suave and how to pick up girls. He's promptly rejected by one lady — Valerie Harper — who says: "Look at his hair — he's trying to prove the wet look isn't dead."

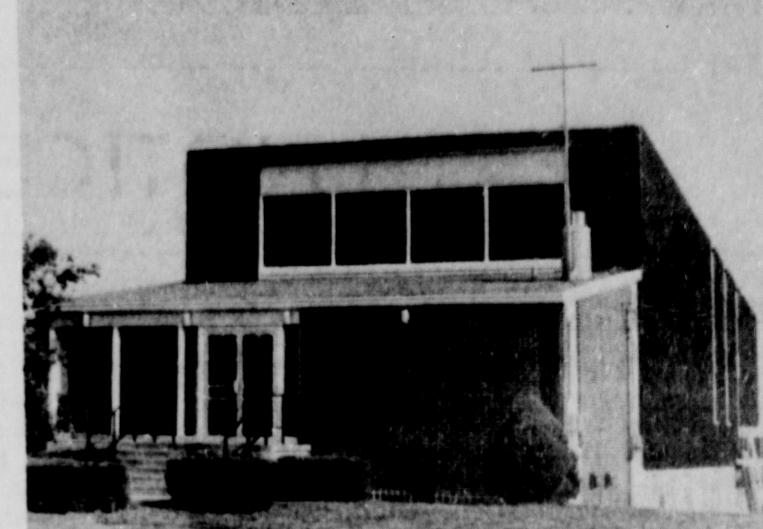

Turning to international affairs, the CBS, NBC and ABC networks all say they'll carry Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's address to the United States at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The videotaped speech, which lasts 30 minutes, will include a simultaneous English translation.

The girls want more than the washing machines and other appliances they see on television," he continued. "They also want something to show the girls in the office."

Because of the growing demand and the limited supply — all the rough diamonds found in the world in a single year would fill only one 2 1/2-ton truck — some 20 million American women have more of an inflation hedge than they realize.

The fear of inflation, as well as rising demand for engagement

10th Anniversary

Our Savior Lutheran Church, West Highway 50, will celebrate the 10th anniversary of its groundbreaking with a special service at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the church. A reception will follow. An 11:30 a.m. fellowship dinner also will be held in connection with the event, according to the Rev. Roger Sonnenberg, pastor of the church.

Berlin Airlift Is Still Vivid Memory

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — It was November before I began to feel confident we won," Gail Halvorsen said. "We had zero-zero weather but we kept going anyway. The radar was working — we knew then we could really do something."

In November 1948 Halvorsen was a first lieutenant, U.S. Air Force, a pilot in the greatest airlift ever assembled, not for war, but to save a city, West Berlin and its 2 1/2 million people.

Halvorsen, from Salt Lake City, Utah, joined the lift almost from its beginning on June 26, 1948, when the Russians imposed a blockade on West Berlin.

Peter Downard, then a captain in the British army, also was posted to the airlift, joining Royal Air Force crews because of a shortage of transport pilots.

He agreed with Halvorsen. "There was a point when all pilots realized that the airlift operation could be broken."

Downard, 49, went back to the army after the blockade. He now is a brigadier and commands the British Berlin Brigade.

Each has the chance to compare the Berlin of 1948-49 with the Berlin of today.

Halvorsen, 52, now a colonel, commands the Air Force installation at Tempelhof Airfield, the main terminus of the airlift that ended formally Sept. 30, 1949.

The Russians lifted their blockade May 12, 1949, but the allies kept flying in supplies to build a year's reserve that is maintained to this day. In all, 2,343,301 1/2 tons of everything from candy to coal were flown in via three air corridors the Russians never tried to close.

Halvorsen spoke for both when he declared, "I can remember it all as though it were yesterday."

"We had problems in the early days ... no landing radar ... then bad weather with planes pouring in from all over. They told you to hold at 10,000 feet and once, in the soup, we were suddenly nose to nose with another C54. We both yelled and the controller on the ground came back, 'Shut up so I can help.'"

The C54 was the Skymaster, a four-engine transport just coming of age in time for the airlift, a coincidence that some say made success possible.

The airlift pilots were warned they might be shot down if they strayed out of the air corridors where the Western aircraft still today have a right of way.

With the advent of ground radar and ground directed approaches, Halvorsen said, in the midst of extremely bad weather with zero visibility in any direction, it became apparent the Russians had lost their gamble to force the allies out.

ment rings, is involved in the diamond price increases, as it is in the price of gold and antiques and paintings.

Rising prices are a worldwide phenomenon, and repeated currency disruptions accentuate the problem. People traditionally seek security in objects of real value when they begin to fear paper currency.

Statistics compiled by Dun & Bradstreet show that a high quality diamond that sold for

$1,200 in 1953 had risen to $1,590

by early 1963 and to $3,800 in February of this year.

But since then, according to George Kaplan, vice president of Lazare Kaplan International, one of the country's largest importers of quality stones, that same diamond has risen another $1,200 to around $5,000.

Graveside services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in Buffalo, Kan.

Otterville Dealer Ordered to Stop

(Democrat-Capital Service)

OTTERVILLE — David B. Mayfield has been suspended as a registered livestock dealer here for violating bonding requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) said Friday. Mayfield purchases livestock in the west-central Missouri area.

According to USDA, Mayfield consented to issuance of the order and waived a hearing. He neither admitted nor denied the charge contained in an administrative complaint filed by the Packers and Stockyards Administration. Donald A. Campbell, USDA judicial officer, also ordered Mayfield to cease and desist from operating as a market agency or livestock dealer without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond.

Livestock dealers and market agencies are required, under the Packers and Stockyards Act, to maintain a bond as a measure of financial protection for the sellers of livestock.

Woman Sought Here Is In Custody Now

Kathleen Owsley, Marshall, wanted in Pettis County on a bogus check charge, was apprehended Thursday night in Albuquerque, N. M., Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Friday.

The Owsley woman allegedly issued a no funds check of $412.13 March 2 to Pat O'Connor Chevrolet-Buick-GMC Co., 1300 South Limit.

Fairfax said he did not know whether the woman would waive extradition.

Court Asks France To Abandon Testing

THE HAGUE (AP) — The International Court of Justice called on France today to refrain from nuclear testing in the South Pacific pending a final decision on the legality of the test series.

By an 8-6 vote, the court ruled that Australia and France should not take any action in the meantime "which might extend the dispute or prejudice the final decision of the court."

The court's ruling followed applications last month by Australia and New Zealand seeking an injunction against the French test series.

The court said it would schedule further hearings in September and December. It did not say if France, which boycotted last month's hearings, would be represented at the forthcoming sessions.

In their pleadings before the court, representatives of both the Australian and New Zealand governments said further nuclear tests in the South Pacific would present unacceptable health and environmental dangers to the population of the areas concerned.

The Australian attorney general, Lionel Murphy, said the forthcoming series might be of a "size and yield hitherto unequalled."

The people of the southern hemisphere "will pay with their lives for the French decision to go ahead with their spring test program," he added.

France so far has refused to give any information as to the nature and yield of the devices which it proposes to explode.

The only indication so far that the tests are imminent were reports last Saturday from Tahiti saying six French navy vessels, known to be connected with the tests, left there last week bound for the Mururoa Atoll.

The Mururoa test atoll lies 750 miles southeast of Tahiti.

French opposition leader Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber said in the Tahitian capital of Papeete Thursday the French government plans six or eight nuclear atmospheric tests in the South Pacific this year, and must start them by the end of July.

The Radical party leader is in Tahiti to lead a mass demonstration Saturday against the tests.

The World Court's ruling still left the door open for France to step into the case should this now be decided by the French government.

The court noted that France had declined to accept its jurisdiction in the case in a letter handed over by the French ambassador to the Hague on May 16. At that time, the French also demanded that the Australian and New Zealand applications should be removed from the court's agenda.

The court declined to do that today, but invited Australia to file submissions by Sept. 21 attesting to the court's jurisdiction "and the admissibility" of the Australian application.

It set Dec. 21 as the deadline for any counter proposals that the French may decide to file.

French officials had no immediate comment on today's ruling.

French officials in the past said they would ignore any decision on the controversial tests by the court.

Holding Man After Theft At Station

Michael J. Curry, 2408 Margaret Ave., was taken into custody by Sedalia police at 5:55 a.m. Friday at his home in connection with a theft earlier in the morning at the Derby service station, 2409 West Broadway.

Taken in the robbery were 25 gallons of gasoline, two six-packs of beer, an undetermined number of cans of oil and a gasoline filter.

According to reports, police officer Glen Baker, on routine patrol, saw Curry in the station early Friday morning. When questioned by Baker, Curry reportedly told him he was an employee of the firm and was doing some work at the station.

Following a further investigation, Baker later learned that Curry had not worked at the station for nearly a month.

After detecting that a theft had occurred, police officers took Curry into custody at his home.

Curry was being held in city jail at 1 p.m. Friday. Information on the matter was taken over Friday morning to Assistant Pettis County prosecuting attorney Donald Barnes. No charges had been filed.

The Radical party leader is in Tahiti to lead a mass demonstration Saturday against the tests.

The World Court's ruling still left the door open for France to step into the case should this now be decided by the French government.

The court noted that France had declined to accept its jurisdiction in the case in a letter handed over by the French ambassador to the Hague on May 16. At that time, the French also demanded that

Final Working Day For Crews At City Hall

After nearly 13 months on the job, Dean Construction Co. crews were scheduled to put in their final day of work on the new Municipal Building Friday.

Work on the $750,000 structure began June 1, 1972, and has progressed steadily since then. "We're extremely pleased with the project and the fact that we finished it on time," commented Harold Dean, vice-president of the construction firm. "We're meeting our deadline and that's really saying something these days when you often have delays in receiving supplies."

Leonard Warren, who has been supervising the project, said Friday he felt "relief, more than anything else."

Although the construction crews are leaving, the elevator and draperies have not yet been installed. However, Warren indicated he wasn't worried.

"The engine for the elevator should be on its way to Sedalia now," he said. "It will be installed as soon as everything gets here."

After the work crews leave Friday, they will be replaced the first of next week by city clean-up crews and officials transferring city property to its new home. The official moving-in operation is scheduled to begin June 28.

Eases Limits On Dividend Increase Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move apparently aimed at the sagging stock market, the Nixon administration has eased its voluntary guidelines holding dividend increases to 4 per cent a year.

The Committee on Interest and Dividends Thursday gave corporations a choice of holding to the 4 per cent guideline or using a more complicated formula. The complex alternative permits dividends to rise by the average increase between 1968 to 1972.

The committee's chairman, Dr. Arthur F. Burns, head of the Federal Reserve Board, said the new guidelines "will make it possible for many corporations to increase their dividend payments significantly this year and to a still greater degree next year."

Burns said the move would be of particular benefit to the elderly and to widows dependent on dividend income.

But the decision also was directed at the stock market, which has failed to respond favorably to President Nixon's new 60-day freeze on prices.

When a report circulated a few weeks ago that the committee was considering changing the guidelines, the stock market moved up strongly. It dropped after the administration said the proposal to ease the guidelines had been put back on the shelf.

Sources said the latest move was aimed more at the stock market than anything else.

The committee, an adjunct of the Cost of Living Council, said it was guided by considerations of equity, saying that the previous guidelines had limited dividend increases by some companies to unusually low levels in comparison with earnings.

Highway Patrol's Force Increased In Pettis County

Pettis County will be assigned a sixth Highway Patrol trooper July 1, a spokesman for the patrol said Thursday.

He is Andrew L. Stratman, 28, presently living in Richmond. Stratman will be promoted to corporal and serve as an assistant zone commander here, the spokesman said.

Stratman, a native of Vienna, Mo., joined the Patrol in 1966. He also has served in Jackson County.

He and his wife, Geraldine, are the parents of a two-year-old son. They will move to the Sedalia area in the near future, the spokesman said.

Dollar Hits New Lows in Germany

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar dropped to a record low against the West German mark in Frankfurt today and weakened in other European centers.

West European countries stepped in to bolster the faltering Italian lira with up to $2.9 billion worth of support.

American money sank in value to 2.55 marks for $1 as the Frankfurt exchange reopened after a holiday Thursday. Wednesday's price was 2.567 marks.

Frankfurt dealers said the dollar was under selling pressure from New York, and from traders hedging against weekend uncertainties.

For much of the past week, the dollar has closed lower in New York than in European money markets, indicating that American companies are selling dollars for stronger European currencies such as the German mark and Swiss franc.

Equipment There; Maturity Is Not

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year-old son went steady for two years with a "nice girl." Now the girl is six months pregnant and she refuses to give up the baby for adoption.

Marriage is out of the question. Neither one of them is dry behind the ears yet. We are trying to be nice to the girl, even though we feel she did this intentionally in an effort to hook our son. We have known for a long time that he was losing interest in her and we suggested that they break off the steady arrangement six months ago. This is all such a nightmare that I can't believe it is happening to our family. Please, Ann, tell your teenage readers that even though they are still children emotionally, they have the physical equipment to make live babies. And this is one mistake they will have to pay for the rest of their lives. Sign me — Still Numb.

Dear S.N.: I keep telling them and I will continue to do so until my typewriter falls apart. Maybe YOUR letter will strike a responsive chord. I hope so.

Dear Ann Landers: It is regrettable that you were misled into publishing that letter saying an automobile cannot be steered if the engine is turned off. All Ford products can be easily maneuvered with the engine off. The effort required to steer only goes up at very low speeds. Even then, the car can be steered if it is rolling.

Eateries Short On Diet Desserts

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those restaurants that do not offer at least a limited number of desserts, etc., that can be eaten by a person who is on a sugar-free diet and the number is surprisingly large. Add to them the number of people who are passing up a sizable market. — BEE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — How do I remove deodorant stains from the underarms of my husband's shirts (especially the colored ones) now that I live in a state that has outlawed detergents? — MRS. F.W. McK.

DEAR POLLY — Like Mrs. E.V.S. I could not buy pants stretchers in the stores but finally found them in the Good Will store in our town for only a few cents a pair. Salvation Army stores, rummage and garage sales are also likely places to find them. Such places are also great for finding hard-to-buy items: ice trays, cake cooling racks, tops and bottoms to glass coffee makers and many replacement articles. — MRS. J.B.T.

DEAR POLLY — I have so enjoyed the Pointers and found some of them so helpful to me that I am pleased to have one to share with the other readers. My eight-year-old had the flu last week so I took a 17 x 18-inch clear plastic garbage bag, turned about three inches down at the top and then tied it to the head post on his bunk bed. When he would get sick at his stomach and I could not get to him in time, he could help himself and use this bag which was easily taken off and then cleaned and rinsed or discarded. He also could drop facial tissues and so on in it and there was less danger of spreading germs around to say nothing of all the bedding I was saved from washing. I do hope some readers also will find this useful. — MRS. M.S.O.

DEAR POLLY — The season is here for kids to be climbing, bicycling and falling so some accidents are inevitable. Should your child be unfortunate enough to break an arm or leg and have to wear a cast, spray the cast with clear varnish. It will then stay clean the entire time it has to be worn. At age 30 I broke my arm and dreaded the thought of a dirty-looking cast when I went to church or to parties but found this spray solved my problem. — JUDY (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Even One Cigarette Can Prove Harmful

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am an ex-smoker and have recently read one of your articles about tobacco. Why do people who write about the dangers of cigarettes always say that when anyone smokes two packages of cigarettes a day, and inhales them, it is harmful? The truth is that even under a pack a day is harmful to a person's health. I believe if you would say cigarette smoking in any amount is dangerous it would cause more people to give them up.

Dear Dr. Lamb — If exercise is so important how come bedridden patients can survive 30 or 40 years and live until their 70s without hardly moving?

Dear Reader — In the first place, not many of them do. So the basic assumption implied in your question isn't necessarily true. There are examples of individuals who do live a long time at bed rest or with other disabling factors that prevent physical activity. One safeguard these people have is that they are unable to go out and engage in physical activity beyond the limits of their capability. They are not likely to sit before the television set and stuff themselves with potato chips and cheese dips and then run to catch the bus.

Many disabled patients are under constant medical supervision, and problems which occur are often taken care of immediately. There is an old saying that one way to live a long life is to get a chronic disease and take care of it. Possibly because they cannot get to the kitchen, these individuals are usually not overweight. In general, individuals who are not obese tend to live longer than overweight individuals. There are always exceptions to general rules, and exercise is not the only factor in longevity. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Sedalia's Business Growth Is Cited at Annual Banquet

Thomas J. Brown, a vice-president for Commerce Bancshares and guest speaker at the eighth annual industry recognition banquet, received an "Ambassador at Large" citation Thursday evening at the Holiday Inn.

Brown, who is involved in industrial development statewide, praised local business and civic leaders for their success in bringing industry to Sedalia. "You have been able to maintain an excellent overall growth pattern," Brown said.

According to Brown, Sedalia has attracted 16 new industries and witnessed 34 expansions to established businesses since the department of economic development was organized seven years ago. Brown said this growth has accounted for the creation of about 3,100 new jobs in Sedalia.

"You here in Sedalia have scored quite well," Brown said, in relation to local efforts to attract new industry. He explained that his job is similar to that of Bill Hall, Sedalia's director of economic development. "We at Commerce Bancshares try to increase benefits to the area by providing job opportunities and broadening the tax base of the community," Brown said.

Local industries recognized for making economic contributions to Sedalia for last year were inducted into the "Academy of Excellence." Mayor Jerry Jones presented awards to this year's winners: Fischer Concrete Service, Zephyr Manufacturing Co., and Dean Construction Co.

Inducted into the "Academy of Ambassadors," for individual service and achievements in the area of industrial development, were George Dugan Sr., Robert S. Gardner, Russell K. Evans and Ralph E. Dedrick.

James J. Johnston, 32, a former Sedalian, has been named chairman of the board of the Griswold-Eshelman Advertising Agency, Cleveland, Ohio.

Johnston joined the agency in 1964 and was named president in 1969. A year later he was named chief executive officer. Johnston is a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School. His grandmother, Mrs. A.R. Bohon, resides at 321 East Fifth Street.

defeat the measure on the floor of the House of Representatives. Should the Congress want to remove the escalation features we will be willing to discuss somewhat higher guarantee prices."

Under terms of the legislation, basically similar to the Senate-passed bill, the existing 1970 law—due to expire Dec. 31—would be changed by setting up a so-called target price concept of supports under cotton, wheat and feed grains such as corn and grain sorghums.

This would mean crop subsidies, running some $3.5 billion a year, would be eliminated as long as there is a continuation of existing relationships between farm prices and crop production costs. If prices farmers get should drop sharply while production costs go up or remain unchanged, then they would get subsidy payments.

Under the four-year House committee bill, target prices for the first year would be $2.05 a bushel for wheat, $1.38 a bushel for corn and 38 cents a pound for cotton. The figures in the five-year Senate-passed bill are $2.28 for wheat, $1.53 for corn and 43 cents for cotton.

However, Butz told House Agriculture Committee Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., in a letter Wednesday: "guarantee prices above $1.84 for wheat, $1.26 for corn and 35 cents for cotton with the agreed escalation reflecting higher costs per unit of output are unacceptable to this administration.

"If the bill contains guarantee prices above these levels, we will work aggressively to U.S. government plan in the Chilean Congress to prevent Allende from becoming president," the subcommittee reported. Allende was elected.

The recommendation Thursday by the Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations is the outgrowth of an investigation into alleged attempts by the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and the CIA to block the 1970 election of Chilean Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The panel found that ITT Board Chairman Harold S. Geneen "offered a substantial fund to the CIA to be used to support the conservative candidate (Jorge) Alessandri."

After Allende won a popular plurality, not the majority needed for election, the contest was thrown into the Chilean Congress for a decision. At that time, ITT officials offered another $1 million to presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and then-CIA Director Richard Helms "in support of any

Nursery Expansion Plan Is Announced

The planned addition of an 18-by-21 foot all-purpose room and half-bath to the Minniola Day Nursing building, 732 West Cooper, was announced Thursday by nursery board of directors president Dr. A. R. Maddox.

Bids on the addition, which will be located immediately north of the present building, are expected to be reviewed by the board at its July meeting, with construction to begin immediately upon acceptance of a satisfactory bid, Maddox said.

The new space is needed, Maddox said, because "it's just too congested there now for the children and teachers. It's not good for either group to be cramped."

Maddox indicated he was not certain whether the planned expansion would allow more children to be enrolled in the nursery, which now serves 20 children of working mothers, the maximum permitted by the Missouri Board of Nursing Home Administrators.

"We'll get in touch with them to find out about this, but we don't know for sure yet," Maddox said. "We do know, of course, that we want to help students already enrolled."

Maddox also said plans are underway to blacktop the nursery playground to permit all-weather use of the facility.

"Now, the kids can't use it after it rains," Maddox said. "We want to make it possible for kids to use it in all types of weather."

Maddox said a committee, headed by board member Harry Browder, up to Thursday had received bids from two asphalt firms and will report back to the board at its July meeting.

The nursery is a non-profit organization receiving its operating funds from United Way contributions and the fees charged parents for enrolled children.

Bill Passes Committee

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee stamped its final approval Thursday on a sweeping general farm bill with a new subsidy limit and a target price plan of support for major commodities.

The vote was 31 to 4, with Rep. William C. Wampler, R-Va., voting "present." Votes against the legislation were cast by Reps. Charles M. Teague, R-Calif., the senior GOP member; George A. Goodling, R-Pa.; Paul Findley, R-Ill., and LaMar Baker, R-Tenn.

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., committee chairman, told newsmen after the vote that he hopes to get the bill to the floor for House action during the second week of July.

"I think we've got a good chance of passing it," Poage added, despite what he said he considers a veto threat facing the bill in its present form.

The massive package, given tentative approval by 28 to 4 on Wednesday after the committee finished its drafting chores, was accepted without amendment by the panel Thursday.

It includes a $37,500 per crop annual subsidy payment ceiling instead of the current $55,000 level. A Senate-passed version would put a $20,000 annual subsidy limit on each farmer. The House, in a key vote last Friday on the Agriculture Department appropriation bill, decided to go along with the Senate's $20,000-a-farmer approach and went another step by voting to bar the sale or lease of cotton acreage allotments after Dec. 31.

Melody Makers Entertain Local Club

The Melody Makers, a country-western group from Stover, entertained Sedalia Kiwanians at their meeting Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Members of the Melody Makers, most of whom are retired, are Warren Cooper, Jewell Stevenson, Lawrence Monsees and the Rev. Prentice Wibanks. Monsees also exhibited a violin he had made.

Bob Horton introduced the program.

Bob Malone gave a brief talk on his background. Birthday greetings were extended to Bill Giles. Gene Clary led singing, accompanied by Mrs. Keith Maynard.

Bill Mills reminded the club that the Kiwanis golf tournament will be held Monday at the Walnut Hills Country Club.

The Rev. Phil Newell gave the invocation.

Sen. Ryan Is Speaker For Meeting

State Sen. John Ryan was the featured speaker at Tuesday meeting of the Noon Day Optimist Club at the Bothwell Hotel. Don Broaddus, club president, presided.

Ryan discussed legislation that passed or failed to pass during this year's session of the State Legislature. He added the Bothwell Lodge bill was sent to the governor's desk for his signature.

Mrs. Ellen Hamburg, a pharmacy student who is working on her internship at two local pharmacies, was presented as the guest of John Banion.

Since 1952, the governors-general of Canada have been native-born.

Dry Forces Leader Aids His Criticism

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, pictured toasting each other with champagne, "might just as well have toasted each other with a marijuana cigarette," says the leader of Kansas United Dry Forces.

Richard E. Taylor, executive director of the Dry Forces, released a letter Thursday sent to Nixon protesting photographs and television coverage of the toast with the Russian leader.

Taylor said he did not demand either alcohol or marijuana, but that he considers marijuana the lesser of the "two evils."

And while not admonishing the President for drinking, Taylor urged him to refrain from being photographed while doing so because of the impact on the nation's youth.

The United States saw the two world leaders drinking alcoholic beverages, and that nonalcoholic drinks should have been used instead.

"Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States and his Excellency, Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union."

The audience of Russian and American officials rose and applauded, including the senior senator from North Carolina, Sam J. Ervin Jr.

The President and the Communist leader, a study in contrasting lives and personalities, mounted a small platform and there, with portraits of Dolley Madison and George Washington looking over their shoulders, sat down at a heavy walnut table.

Waiting for the ceremony to begin, the President's eyes swept the room and here and there he nodded to familiar faces. Less than 20 feet away, the senior senator from North Carolina nodded back respectfully, a perpetual smile curling a corner of his mouth.

If, for a microsecond, the eyes of the two men met in a courteous collision of antagonists, it was not perceptible. But if they had, one wondered what were they thinking—the President of the United States, climaxing a week at the summit, and Sam Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee that conceivably could bring him down?

But in this week of grace, with the Watergate hearings postponed so that Nixon might negotiate with Brezhnev, the President had the centerpiece of their work to complete. And he quickly got to it.

He and Brezhnev first signed an agreement to expand cooperation on the peaceful uses of CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — A large quantity of explosives was found Thursday near the St. Louis Steamfitters Union recreation area in north St. Louis County, police said.

Capt. Jack Patty, commander of the St. Louis County police criminal investigation bureau, said five bombs, containing a total of 64 sticks of dynamite, were found along with 46 feet of fuse and some blasting caps in a plastic bag stuffed in a concrete sewer culvert.

The discovery came only six days after Thomas J. Callahan, 26, business agent for Steamfitters Local 562, was crippled when a bomb ripped his car apart as he was driving along a north St. Louis County road.

Patty said he received an anonymous telephone call telling him where the bombs were hidden.

He said the tipster "called me directly and said the bombs were in this location. He said he was interested in stopping the killing."

Authorities have theorized that the attempt on Callahan's life is linked to the bombing deaths last year of Steamfitters security guard Louis Shoulders and St. Louis policeman F. Lyman Davis and the fatal shooting of union business manager Edward Steska. All three deaths remain unsolved.

Police refused to speculate on why the explosives had been hidden or stored in the culvert. The dynamite did not have serial numbers as required by law and would be difficult to trade, officials said.

Police estimated the bombs, which were checked for fingerprints and then detonated in a vacant field nearby, had been in the culvert for several days. The dynamite was leaking nitroglycerin and would have been extremely dangerous to anyone trying to use it, a bomb squad detective said.

Agents of the federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms unit entered the investigation following the discovery of the cache.

Callahan, who lost both legs near the knee and parts of both hands in the explosion last Friday, was transferred from St. Louis County Hospital to a private facility Thursday. Officials said he has refused to say who he thinks tried to kill him.

Police have said the bombing came during a bitter struggle for power within the violence-ridden union.

Police have said the bombing came during a bitter struggle for power within the violence-ridden union.

Police refused to speculate on why the explosives had been hidden or stored in the culvert. The dynamite did not have serial numbers as required by law and would be difficult to trade, officials said.

Police estimated the bombs, which were checked for fingerprints and then detonated in a vacant field nearby, had been in the culvert for several days. The dynamite was leaking nitroglycerin and would have been extremely dangerous to anyone trying to use it, a bomb squad detective said.

Some Glances At Existing in Peace

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Social notes from the summit Karl Marx never dreamed of:

Up on the mountain, the leader of the Russian proletariat tries out a new Lincoln Continental given him by the President of the United States, who in the old days wouldn't give a Communist the time of day, and down in the valley the hammer and sickle stands side by side with the stars and stripes on the stage of an American Legion Post, which in the old days would have died first.

Up on the mountain, the traveling heads of the U.S. Secret Service and the Russian Secret police share a cabin in the pines called "Rosebud," and down in the valley, the only watered in town is occupied by a Russian bureaucrat at the "Cozy Motel."

This is called peaceful coexistence.

Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev, the son of a poor miner, tried out his new blue Continental for 10 minutes on the narrow roads of Camp David. His fellow traveler was Richard Milhous Nixon, the son of a poor grocer.

Last year the President gave his partner in summitry a Cadillac, which came just in time since Brezhnev was down to a Rolls-Royce Silver Cloud, a Citroen-Maserati and a Mercedes 450 SLC given him by other national leaders.

No one knows what Detroit will come up with should there be another Soviet-American summit next year.

Thurmont, population 2,500, where the only movie theater in town has been turned into a data processing center, appeared to be taking the presence of so many Russian Communists in stride. Mayor James Black, who runs an upholstery shop on West Main Street, said there was no grumbling.

The one hostile note came from the bar in the basement of the Legion Hall, where a well-muscled bourbon fancier objected on non-ideological grounds.

"I don't care what they believe in but does the President have to give that Russian a Lincoln Continental, which we taxpayers have to pay for?"

The old legionnaire did not appear mollified even when told that the Ford Motor Co. gave the car free to the President to give to Brezhnev.

$1 Per Gallon Will Be Here Eventually

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "I don't think you'll see it for a long time where $1 a gallon is a normally accepted price of gasoline," says the president of Gulf Oil Corp. "It will come, but it will be a long time before it comes." Bob Dorsey predicted at a press conference Tuesday.

He said the price of gasoline and other fuels "are going to be going up steadily as time goes by. I don't think it's going to be dramatic."

Two businessmen demonstrate one way of beating the gasoline shortage as they pedal their way through Omaha traffic in a "people-powered vehicle" (PPV), a three-wheeled machine now available for energetic, ecology-minded folks with the $379 price. Stan Olson, left, Omaha, and Jack McClintic, Des Moines, found they got "unlimited miles per gallon" and could go up to 35 miles per hour if the wind was right.

Big Institutions Given Blame

By JOHN CUNNIF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost nobody denies any more that the big institutions have created serious problems for the stock markets. One of them is to scare the wits out of small stockholders and send them scurrying for cover.

Instinct tells the little investor that he risks serious injury participating in the sporting events of the elephant without first insisting that a spirit of civilized restraint and equality be agreed upon.

So he has been popping up now and then, but only to watch the behemoths—some with assets of a billion dollars or more—knocking prices about like a ball.

There is a lot more to the institutional problem, of course. One particular negative is the tendency of these funds and trusts and insurers to concentrate on certain companies, ignoring the shares of others and leaving them fearing their ability to raise capital.

But any solution must have a beginning, and Paul Kolton, American Stock Exchange president, has been telling congressmen and regulatory officials and institution managers that they must institute rules of civilized competition.

During the past month he has repeatedly urged steps in four areas, avoiding the specifics so as not to distract from the principles involved, but insisting that his ideas are not just suggestions but proposals for action.

TRADING: Institutions must develop guidelines for trading, because the demands they make on markets are often greater than the markets can supply.

For example, when an institution has spent months acquiring a large position, is it reasonable to expect the public, the specialists or other block traders to absorb the entire position in a few minutes or hours?

That's where the big price swings often occur. And so Kolton suggests that the institutions consider limiting themselves to disposal of only a certain amount of stock within a specified time period.

Such guidelines, relating to the kind of nonpublic material information that might be used as a basis for trading, would go a long way toward convincing the individual investors that he can achieve a fair shake in the market.

Kolton hopes to obtain voluntary action. "When you can get voluntary agreement instead of government action it is more effective and efficient."

But if that isn't forthcoming he suggests that the Securities and Exchange Commission act, "and if it is not in their ambit, then Congress should act."

DISCLOSURE: Some institutions, mainly mutual funds, currently make public their portfolios. If other institutions were to act similarly, this fact alone might make them more concerned about the way they use the markets.

All is not roses in the Nixon-Brezhnev talks

WASHINGTON — An historic journey to China and a summit meeting in Moscow did a lot to blind Americans to the tragic importance of Watergate.

The fateful irony is that now Watergate could blind millions of Americans to the importance and the perils of the Brezhnev-Nixon summit in Washington.

Thanks to a one-week moratorium in the hearings of the Ervin committee, President Nixon has not had to confer with Soviet Communist boss Leonid Brezhnev with "bombs at his feet and a pistol at his head," as one British paper feared.

Yet, it is clear here as in Europe that the tough, natty Russian could not have come to Washington at a worse time for the forces of democracy. For Mr. Nixon is crippled by scandal and almost desperately in need of some startling international achievement to give him fresh claim to the reins of leadership, to divert America's attention from the spreading cesspool of crime and corruption which we know as Watergate.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph in London put the matter succinctly when it said: "Mr. Nixon must keep his head with Mr. Brezhnev, even if he loses it to Watergate soon afterwards."

There are ample reasons for nervousness. The administration already has blundered in subsidizing a billion-dollar wheat sale to the Russians with $300 million in U.S. taxpayers' money, not to mention its effect on bread and other prices here. Then, in his somewhat bewildered announcement of Phase 3½,

President Nixon dropped hints of major announcements to come in his meeting with Brezhnev, clear evidence that already he was using foreign affairs, where he feels confident, to cloak his debacles in the domestic field.

But the real likelihood is that neither Nixon nor Brezhnev is giving enough away to cause alarm anywhere. They may produce a communiqué that embraces seemingly major agreements, but it will take a long time to discover what is cosmetic and what is substance. What no one quite knows about these meetings is what is ideological change of heart and what is simply new guile.

The arms race and the contest for world domination between these two superpowers produced a waste of a trillion dollars in the decade of the 1960s. That is a thousand billion dollars! It makes the mind weep blood to think what a trillion dollars could have done for America's cities, or Russia's peasants, or toward finding a cure for cancer and the other diseases that ravage mankind.

The overriding element in the Nixon-Brezhnev talks is fearful distrust. How much of it can these men wipe away?

Brezhnev needs trade with the U.S. Surely he wants to allow the Soviet masses to eat and dress better, to enjoy more of the pleasures of life. But does that mean he trusts Americans not to try secretly to grab an overwhelming military advantage? Does it mean he now really trusts Nixon as more a peacemaker than a Communist-hater?

And how far can Americans trust Brezhnev? Has he abandoned the "we will bury you" challenge hurled by Nikita Khrushchev, or has he simply employed a more sophisticated shovel? What evidence is there Brezhnev has jettisoned the doctrine that the Soviet Union has a right to suppress militarily any Eastern European country which seems to stray from "socialist" principles? Is Brezhnev ready to end the absurdity of Soviet troops in Hungary and other countries so the United States can end the absurdity of keeping 300,000 GIs in Western Europe?

Those talks this week have represented poker for the highest possible stakes, and it is well that Mr. Nixon did not have to play his hand with the accusations of John Wesley Dean III ringing in the background.

But one thing we all must remember. We have come a long way from the days when war with the Soviet Union seemed utterly possible, and at times imminent; but we are not so close to peace as any of us might hope. These summit talks are only a beginning, so the chess game with the Soviets will go on in gripping intensity long after Nixon, Brezhnev and Watergate have faded from the headlines.

How to cope with waiting

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Now that we are in the middle of the summer vacation season, many families will be eating at motel restaurants. Having recently returned from a brief trip myself, I would like to report on the state of tourist eating establishments, and offer a few guidelines for survival.

First off, assume that all motel restaurants are short-handed and you won't be disappointed. Service presents the most formidable challenge to the tourist. There are four major phases here: (1) getting a menu; (2) getting your order taken; (3) getting served; (4) getting your check. We will take them one at a time.

Getting the Menu—The first thing to avoid is picking the wrong table. Don't seat yourself at a table where six people have just eaten and the tip is 35 cents—they make trouble ahead.

Once you have found a suitable table (on your own, since the hostess will not be anywhere in sight, despite the "Please Wait For Hostess" sign), you must get the waitress' attention. This can sometimes be done by staring expectantly at each waitress who goes by, in the hope that one might stop. This can quickly give you a crick in the neck, however, and is not very effective during busy times.

Therefore I usually take the direct approach by waving a pillow case that I have taken from the car. Held aloft and moved rapidly back and forth, it will eventually get results.

Getting Your Order Taken—Once you have received your menus, you quickly ascertain individual orders. Avoid ordering the fresh cat fish, because you will be informed a half-hour later that they are out of cat fish.

By the time you have drunk everyone's ice water and memorized the menu, it will be clear that your waitress is not coming back. Instead of filing a missing person report, stop the next waitress that trots by and say:

"Miss, would you please check on our waitress? We haven't seen her in two hours and I'm afraid something has happened."

Your waitress will soon return, wiping back her hair and informing you that she has a Chamber of Commerce banquet in the back room and that Betty and Jean didn't bother to come in today. You sympathize and ask if you can order now.

Getting Your Food—This can easily be the most trying step in the process. But it can be made more enjoyable by slowing eating all the crackers in the basket, making little ring patterns on the table with your empty water glass, and trying to guess if your order is the next one coming out of the kitchen. It never is.

As you watch the family that came in 40 minutes after you did getting served, the temptation to walk out will be great. This can best be resisted by realizing that the place down the road will be even worse.

Once you are served, don't send your meal back just because the lettuce is brown, the meat cold and you got succotash instead of cole slaw. Food that is sent back merely disappears, never to return.

Getting the Check—You can use your pillow case again here, or make everyone get up at once and make a big production out of getting ready to leave, which sometimes helps. If your waitress is still nowhere in sight, then go directly to the counter, where the hostess has materialized again, and tell her you want to pay. Be careful to leave a one-half of one per cent tip on the table.

The hostess will then go in search of your waitress, and both will be gone for five minutes. By then it's pretty clear that you'll never make Vincennes by dark, so you might as well not sweat it.

It never seems to do much good anyway.

(There have been suggestions for issuing tourists a simple flare pistol that would make the whole business of eating out a lot easier. There could be four different colored flares—green for getting a menu, red for ordering, white for "where is my food?" and red for the check. The problem of fire dangers has prevented much progress in this area, however.—Ed.)

'Fat cat' envoys
on the way out?

The venerable if not exactly "time-honored" custom of rewarding political contributors with ambassadorships may be on the way out, and few there are who will mourn it.

A pending policy statement by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, already accepted in principle by the State Department, would permit only 15 per cent of ambassadorships to be drawn from outside Foreign Service ranks (compared with a current average of 30 to 35 per cent for noncareer appointments).

In addition, any nominee for an ambassadorship who contributed more than $10,000 to a campaign would be viewed as unacceptable by the committee.

To repeat, few will regret the passing of the old system, except perhaps those "fat cats" who felt that the prestige of the thing or the social class it gave them entree to was worth what it cost them to maintain their posts (more about that below).

However, because everyone these days has been primed to believe the worst about politicians, and political contributors, it should be pointed out that the conferring of diplomatic plums in return for campaign donations was one of those practices which, like Topsy, just grew, and was not necessarily the product of conscious evil.

It was a self-feeding process: Because a stingy and moralistic Congress consistently refused to provide the funds necessary to run the nation's foreign embassies, particularly in the department of entertainment, only rich men willing to dig into their own pockets could afford to be ambassadors.

Or maybe it was the other way around: Because an ambassadorship was a convenient way to reward a political contributor, and since most contributors were perfume well-heeled the Lemonade Lucies in Congress were able to score points with the public by refusing to vote enough funds to run an embassy in the manner in which the members of the international diplomatic set had accustomed themselves (even if it was only nibbling free sandwiches at the traditional Fourth of July openhouse).

Whichever way it happened, the result was the same.

But if the fat cats no longer underwrite a significant part of the nation's diplomatic functioning, that means Congress will have to—and that brings us back where the whole thing started. (NEA)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Two of the entertainment world's shrewdest businessmen, Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr., were the innocent dupes of high-pressure race racketeers, a secret congressional study contends.

This is the judgment rendered by the House Crime Committee on Sinatra's $55,000 flyer in a now-defunct New England race track, and Davis' brief ride as a thoroughbred stable owner.

"Because neither could say 'no' to a good business deal," concludes the 183-page confidential draft report. Davis and Sinatra "each found himself the unwitting front in corrupt racing schemes orchestrated by middle men with close ties to major racketeers."

Sinatra, says the report, "ascended to the board of directors and was elected vice president of Berkshire Downs Race Track in Hancock, Mass., all on a $55,000 investment."

"Also invited to share in the deal was Sinatra's old side-kick, singer Dean Martin," says the committee document. "Martin, who was offered a similar 5 per cent investment in the track for $55,000, ultimately turned it down."

The committee findings, based on detailed hearings, say some of the singer's less entertaining co-investors in the track included New England Mafia boss Raymond Patriarcha and New York mobster Tommy "Three-Finger Brown" Lucchese.

Sinatra says he agreed to join the venture after he was introduced to a man named Salvatore Rizzo in 1962 at a night club in Atlantic City. Rizzo, identified by the FBI as a conduit for organized crime funding of the track, insists he has known Sinatra for 15 to 20 years.

Though Sinatra concedes he was acquainted with Lucchese, he denies he knew the hoodlum was involved in the race track. Indeed, Sinatra swears he didn't even know he was going to be on the track's board of directors.

In any case, Sinatra withdrew from the track and got back his $55,000, partly, says the committee report, because he was investing in the Sands Hotel and gambling casino in Las Vegas. Nevada law bars casino owners from holding interests in gambling ventures in other states.

Summing up Sinatra's role in the track, the committee says "Sinatra and his attorney pictured it as little more than a petty speculative venture." But in fact, Sinatra's "character and reputation were misused to deceive racing officials" about Mafia participation at the track.

Singer Davis also fell into the race horse business at a night club, the study finds. At New York's famous Copacabana, a Mafia boss named Gaetano "Corky" Vastola courted Davis' attention by sending over bottles of champagne.

Finally, Davis was sold on the idea of letting his name be used by Vastola's friends on "Sammy Davis Jr. Farms," in New Jersey. But before he could say "Candy Man," Davis found he was being personally billed for purchasing four race horses and was dunned for $8,800. Davis refused to pay.

Footnote: The confidential study is presently being held up by a squabble among Crime Committee members over whether to include a long section on racketeers to Emprise, a nationwide concern that runs food concessions at stadiums and other service enterprises.

According to sources who accompanied Brezhnev on the plane from Moscow, every down draft sent the distressed Communist chieftain scuttling off to the washroom.

Brezhnev's air sickness may have been the reason why photographers were not allowed close enough to snap his presumably pallid picture upon arrival last Saturday at Dulles airport.

His 18-hour stay at the President's Camp David retreat before official ceremonies began probably was planned to give the Russian leader time to recover.

Earmuffed Press: Newspaper publishers, faced with new regulations on the noise levels in their press rooms, are itchy over the possibility that the government may use its occupational safety powers to quiet the presses completely.

Under the Occupational Safety and Health Act, the government theoretically could step in and shut down the printing plants of papers whose reporters irritate highly placed politicians.

The act sets a stringent ceiling on noise allowed in any workplace, and as a short term remedy, has sent newspapers scrambling to equip pressmen with the kind of earmuffs used by jet airport employees. At the Labor Department, which administers the act, sources say soothily there is no intention to use it to stifle the press.

78 ATP Players Won't Play

Rebels Stand Fast on Wimbledon Boycott

LONDON (AP) — The international tennis rebels insisted on going through with their boycott of Wimbledon today and the world's most famous championship becomes a ghost tournament.

After a meeting lasting most of the night, the militant Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) snuffed out flickering hopes of peace and confirmed that 78 of its members were walking out.

The announcement came exactly seven hours before officials of the all-England club sat down to make the draw. The tournament starts Monday.

It meant that dozens of lower ranked players who normally would have little hope even of qualifying for Wimbledon were thrown into a hunt for prize money totalling $2,000 pounds—about $130,000.

Ilie Nastase, ordered by Romania to play, became a runaway favorite.

With defending champion Stan Smith among the boycotters, Nastase found himself challenged seriously only by men like Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, Alexander Metreveli of Russia and Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill.

Connors, 20-year-old left-hander is the only prominent American player who is not a member of ATP.

ATP first announced its boycott plan two days ago after a British high court judge refused to interfere in tennis lawmaking and lift the suspension of Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

Pilic had been suspended by his national federation unjustly, said ATP, because he refused to play for his country in the Davis Cup.

Wimbledon was left with a slim hope that some players might desert the ATP camp at the eleventh hour and play.

Declarations of withdrawal were not being handed in by ATP until just before the draw was due to start.

Wimbledon originally accepted 112 players for the men's singles and left 16 more places open for winners of the qualifying tournament which has been going on intermittently between rain showers since last Monday.

Officials had an alternative list of 1.8 made up of the non-boycotters plus the hopefuls who entered the qualifying event.

The women's singles goes on unchanged. Billie Jean King, reigning Wimbledon queen, called a meeting of the girls Thursday night and formed a 35-strong women's association to fight for higher prize money.

But she said there were no plans to boycott what she called "the greatest tournament in the world."

'Want Public to See Him'

Secretariat Will Run in Chicago

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat, "the horse of the people" as jockey Ron Turcotte called him after the Belmont Stakes, will race at Arlington Park June 30 because trainer Lucien Laurin and owner Helen Tweedy agree with Turcotte.

"We want the public to see him," Laurin said Thursday of the decision to send the first Triple Crown champion in 25 years to Chicago for a three-horse match race.

The opposition for the 1 1/8-mile race will be Our Native, third to Secretariat in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, and probably Blue Chip Dan, and the purse will be $125,000, with $75,000 to the winner, $30,000 for second and $20,000 for third.

But Laurin emphasized the chance for more people, and people from another section of the nation, to see Secretariat before he goes to stud later this year was the overriding reason for going to Arlington Park.

Secretariat is scheduled to leave for Chicago next Thursday.

Secretariat has proven to be one of the greatest attendance and attention magnets thoroughbred racing has ever had.

The strapping chestnut son of Bold Ruler thrilled millions of television viewers, record turnouts for the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and the second biggest Belmont Park crowd ever as he marched to the Triple Crown with a dazzling blend of stamina and speed.

Television will be on for Secretariat's sooner-than-expected return to action, with the race to be shown live on ABC-TV's Wide World of Sports show scheduled for 5 p.m.-6:30 p.m. EDT.

Linda's Chief, who was 2-year-old but has not faced him this year while winning several stakes, was originally expected to start but owner Neil Hellman decided against it because the distance was too long.

The next three races on Sec-retariat's schedule at this time, according to Laurin, are the 1 1/8-mile Jim Dandy, listed as tentative, the 1 1/4-mile Travers at Saratoga in August and the 1 1/2-mile Woodward, in which he would meet older horses, Sept. 29 at Belmont Park.

Under terms of a $6,080,000 syndication for stud, Secretariat cannot race after Nov. 5.

Legislature Backs Aaron

MOBILE, Ala. — The Alabama Legislature unanimously adopted a resolution Thursday praising Atlanta Braves' slugger Hank Aaron, a native of Mobile, and wishing him luck in his drive to break Babe Ruth's career home run record.

The resolution commanded Aaron for a "brilliant baseball career" and called him an "example on and off the field to countless young fans who are striving to be successful in the game of life."

Indians Replace

Catcher King

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis Indians of baseball's American Association announced Thursday the signing of catcher Greg Dehn to replace Mal King, called up earlier this week by the Indians' parent baseball club, the Cincinnati Reds.

Dehn, 22, a 6-foot-3 195-pounder, has been with Birmingham of the Southern League. He is expected to join the club in time for the Indians' game tonight at Evansville.

Threatens All-Star Game

Players Protest Warning Track

NEW YORK (AP) — The Major League Baseball Players Association filed a grievance Thursday protesting the lack of an adequate warning track at Royals Stadium in Kansas City, according to Marvin Miller, executive director of MLBPA.

The grievance asks that the hazardous condition be corrected and, if it is not corrected, that all future games scheduled for Royals Stadium, including the 1973 All-Star Game next month, be transferred elsewhere.

The grievance, filed against the Kansas City Royals and the American League, claims, "Royals Stadium does not have a warning track with a minimum distance of 10 feet from the outfield fences."

This is the first season in the stadium, a new park built exclusively for baseball and part of the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex, which also includes Arrowhead Stadium for the Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League.

Previous games were played at Kansas City's Municipal Stadium.

Royals Stadium has artificial turf, and a strip of the turf near the outfield fence is painted a different color. The grievance contends this strip does not adequately fulfill the requirement of a warning track.

"Despite numerous injuries to players, the most notable of which was the disabling injury to Willie Horton of the Detroit Tigers in May, the owners' representatives appear to have no interest in correcting the hazard," Miller said in a statement last night.

"We find this lack of concern for player safety shortsighted and callous," Miller added. "In the grievance, we are demanding expedited arbitration, and will be asking the impartial arbitrator to order immediate correction of the hazard."

US Needs Changes In Ryder Selection

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. Ryder Cup team—812 members strong—will go to Muirfield, Scotland to play Britain's best in the biennial matches Sept. 20-22.

Johnny Miller won't be on the American team.

The United States Open champion isn't eligible.

In fact, of the first 10 finishers in the American National championship at Oakmont, Pa., four of them are not eligible for the team that will represent this country in the prestigious matches.

Jerry Heard, Lanny Wadkins and Jim Colbert are the others.

The rules of eligibility, laid down by the American PGA, require that members of the United States team be native born and—this is the clincher—be a PGA member.

Miller, of course, is native born. But he isn't a PGA member. In fact, he isn't even eligible to be a PGA member.

To become a Class A member of the PGA a player must serve an apprenticeship and then attend a school.

Miller hasn't completed his apprenticeship.

That regulation also knocks out other such young stars of the game as Heard, Wadkins, Grier Jones and Buddy Allin.

The requirement involving the school eliminates Colbert and George Archer, among other veterans. Even with the discrimination against the younger players—Miller and Wadkins each has won more than $100,000 this year—and the non-member veterans, the United States has been unbeaten since 1959.

Britain has different regulations involving the selection of its team, which will be dotted with such youthful standouts as Peter Oosterhuis, Brian Barnes and Bernard Gallacher.

Plays 1,530 Holes

LEBANON, Tenn. (AP) — Raymond Lasater claimed a world's record Thursday by playing golf continuously for 62 hours, 20 minutes over 1,530 holes. During his marathon at the Hunters Point Course, he missed the birth of his first grandchild.

Rutherford Says Cars Still Going Too Fast

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP)

— "We're still running too fast," says Johnny Rutherford.

"We need to do some really serious thinking about race speeds."

Rutherford, a 35-year-old speedster from Fort Worth, Tex., watched at Pocono International Raceway Thursday as drivers tore around the 2.5 mile tri-oval at lap speeds over 185 miles-an hour.

"What they did wasn't a drop in the bucket," the Texan said referring to post-Indianapolis rules changes that clipped nine inches off the rear-mounted wings of the open-cockpit, single-seater racers he and other championship drivers will wheel in the $400,000 Schaefer 500-mile race July 1.

"This is a reasonably safe race track," he said. "But before we get back to Indianapolis next year, something more concrete will have to be done to reduce speeds."

Rutherford won the Indiana pole position with a 10-mile ride at 198.413 m.p.h.

Frank Leahy
Leahy Dead

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Leahy never wanted to be compared to his predecessor Knute Rockne. "They'll never be another Rockne," said Leahy who died in Portland Thursday at the age of 65.

But in memory, that's where he ended up, just a short step down from the Notre Dame football immortal of the late 1920s and 1930s.

"No question about it, he was quite a guy," said Red Blaik, former Army coach whose Army team battled Leahy's Iris to a scoreless tie in 1946. "He was one of the great coaches of the last 25-30 years."

Leahy's 17-hour-a-day dedication to football gave him a record which fell only slightly short of Rockne's. He had a career mark of 107-13-9 as head coach of Boston College, and then at Notre Dame from 1941 through 1953. That's an .883 percentage, barely below Rockne's .897.

"Everyone here at Notre Dame and thousands of Frank Leahy's friends, teammates and players mourn his passing. We all suffered a personal loss," said longtime Notre Dame athletic director Edward "Moose" Krause.

"We all cherish his dedication, friendship and his love for Notre Dame."

Tennis Tourney Starts Saturday

The Third-annual Sedalia Amateur Tennis Tournament is scheduled to get underway Saturday at 7 a.m. at the Liberty Park tennis courts.

Semifinals and finals will be held Sunday afternoon in all divisions — boys junior, boys, men's singles, men's doubles, junior vets, men's doubles, women's singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in each division following Sunday's finals.

Information on starting times and first-round pairings may be obtained by contacting David Porter (826-6231) or Larry Whiteside (826-8020).

The top seeds in each division are as follows: Men's singles (10-14) — 1. Richard Hausam, 2. Bill Huff; men's singles (15-18) — 1. Mike Best, 2. Steve Steen, 3. Doug Maple, 4. Mark Robino; men's singles (open) — 1. Dave Porter, 2. Mike Best, 3. Steve Steen, 4. Larry Whiteside, 5. Bob Logan, 6. Tim Salmon, 7. Doug Maple, 8. Mark Robino; men's singles (junior vets) — 1. Earl Finley, 2. Cliff Kateman; men's doubles — 1. Porter-Whiteside, 2. Logan-Best, 3. Don Steen-Burdette, 4. Hausam-Van Horn; women's singles — 1. Jean Eschbacher, 2. Rayanna Hall, 3. Marcia Thomas, 4. Jamie Schumaker; women's doubles — 1. Eschbacher-Hall, 2. Thomas-Young; mixed doubles — 1. Porter-Young, 2. Whiteside-Eschbacher, 3. Salmon-Thomas, 4. Fowler-Hall.

Tennis will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in each division following Sunday's finals.

The lone female qualifier for the Missouri Valley meet is Stacy Schulz, who will compete in the 100 and 220 dashes in the bantam girls division.

Competitors in the senior and intermediate divisions are the only ones that can qualify for the Region 8 competition.

Kratzert Into Lead

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — For awhile Georgia's Bill Kratzert's forgot he was playing in a foursome Thursday with Texas' heralded Ben Crenshaw. He might have been mistaken for someone in the gallery, the way he studied each shot by the two-time national champion.

But the soft-spoken Georgia junior caught himself just in time. After shooting a 35 on the front nine, Kratzert decided he had best concentrate on his own game and not Crenshaw's. The result was a birdie explosion and a 32 on the back nine for a round of 67, vaulting him to a one-stroke lead for medalist honors in the NCAA Golf Championships here.

Meanwhile, Florida took an 11-stroke lead in the team battle. Florida wound up with a two-day total of 558 followed by Oklahoma State at 569, Houston at 570 and Texas and Louisiana State at 578.

Terry Dischinger

Says He'll Retire

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) —

Terry Dischinger of the Portland Trail Blazers has announced his retirement after nine seasons in the National Basketball Association.

The 6-foot-7 forward revealed his decision in a letter to Stu

Inman, vice-president and player personnel director of the Blazers. He said he plans to pursue special dental studies that he hopes will lead to a practice in Portland.

The 32-year-old Dischinger, acquired from the Detroit Pistons last year, was hampered by injuries during the 1972-73 season. He played only 970 minutes, by far the lowest total of his career. He averaged 6.1 points a game, which also was a career low.

Marcel Will

Defend Title

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) —

Ernesto Marcel of Panama, recognized by the World Boxing Association as the world featherweight champion, agreed Thursday to defend his title against the winner of Saturday's Ruben Olivares-Bobby Chacon fight.

Marcel was guaranteed $60,000 by the Forum Boxing Club and both Charcon and Olivares, former world bantamweight champion from Mexico City, have agreed to fight Marcel in a title bout.

The field was cut to 15 teams for today's third round. Kratzert has a trio on his heels at one-stroke back including Crenshaw who carted a 68 Thursday for his 137. Matching that total were Phil Hancock, Florida freshman, and San Jose State's Phil Barry. Florida's Andy Bean was alone at 138.

Kratzert said it was an "honor" playing with Crenshaw. "I was really watching him on the front side. I watched him hit some really good shots. But once I got my game going and made a couple of shots of my own, I stopped him watching him. You have to play your own game."

However, he said there are benefits playing in Crenshaw's group, adding that the large gallery that follows the baby-faced Texas star has little bearing on his play.

"When you play with Ben, it gives you inspiration. You feel like you have to have a good game," he said.

Kratzert really caught fire after hitting a flag with a nine-iron enroute to par on the 12th hole. He birdied holes Nos. 13, 14, 16 and 17, including birdies of 15 and 17 feet.

Crenshaw remained the odds on favorite to snare the medalist honors. But the Longhorn junior was disturbed that his team had fallen so far back in its bid for an unprecedented third straight collegiate championship.

"We need to get solid rounds tomorrow from all of our players. As for myself I just have to play the best I can, shoot the best score and that will help the team," Crenshaw said.

The three first round leaders Wednesday—with 67's—failed to break par on the par 70 Stillwater Golf and Country Club course Thursday. Oklahoma State's Henry DeLozier had a 72 to follow Bean at 139. Florida's Gary Koch and Oklahoma State's Danny Edwards each had a 73 to stay at even par 140.

Dodgers Call Up

Tom Tischinski

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Catcher Joe Ferguson of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who suffered a broken thumb, was placed on the 15-day disabled list and Tom Tischinski of Kansas City was called up from the Albuquerque, N. M., farm club.

Ferguson, one of the Dodgers' leading hitters, suffered the injury on his right hand in the 11th inning of the Dodgers' 6-5 victory Wednesday night over Atlanta.

Tischinski, who was with the Minnesota Twins from 1969-71, spent last season with Charlotte, N. C., of the Southern League and Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League. With Albuquerque this year he hit .267 in 45 games with four home runs and 21 runs batted in.

He will be an understudy to Steve Yeager who takes over Ferguson's first string job. One game is scheduled

Irish President Stepping Down

DUBLIN (AP) — A venerable limousine will trundle through Dublin's Phoenix Park on Sunday and an era will be over.

Brooklyn-born Eamon de Valera, president for 14 years and the focus of Irish affairs for more than half a century, is retiring at last.

The bands will be out and the flags flying, but the old revolutionary will not see them. De Valera, still ramrod straight and quick of mind, is at 90 almost totally sightless.

The eyes that once held a vision of a pastoral Ireland, devoted to the ancient Irish language and scornful of material acquisition, now are dimmed behind thick glasses.

The pastoral dream lies shattered.

Boys State Delegates Hear Bond

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP)

— Gov. Christopher S. Bond told delegates to Boys State Thursday night they are the building blocks of a strong Missouri government.

Bond told the youths, all honor students from high schools throughout the state, that government can be only as good as it makes it.

He added that government can succeed only if people have pride in their governing bodies.

Earlier Thursday, Charles Kevin Mays of Brentwood High School was elected president of Boys State.

Mays was the Nationalist Party candidate and defeated the Federalist candidate, Jean Paul Bradshaw II of Springfield.

Another Nationalist candidate, Douglass Lee Carter of Springfield defeated Kim Maiers of Neosho for lieutenant governor.

tered beneath Ireland's growing involvement with industrial Europe. The nationalist ideal of a united Ireland, free from British sway, has yet to be achieved.

Thus de Valera quits the political stage in some ways a failure. Yet he remains the man who perhaps more than any other broke the might of the British Empire and showed scores of colonial territories the road to independence.

He is the prototype of nationalist leaders who have progressed from agitation and guerrilla war through imprisonment to eventual political power.

Old comrades of the fight for Irish independence still call him "The Chief." To the rest of the nation he is "Dev" and, whether loved or hated, an acknowledged giant.

Even before his official retirement, de Valera quietly slipped out of the presidential palace in Phoenix Park and moved into a nursing home run by Roman Catholic nuns.

De Valera and his poetess wife, Sinead, 95, drove out of the palace Tuesday night, without ceremony, in a dark blue Rolls-Royce five days before they were officially scheduled to quit.

De Valera told the nuns at the place that will be his home from now on, "I didn't want to upset the patients. I just wanted to slip in quietly."

A spokesman at the palace said de Valera still came to work every day to clear up his office, but was driven to the Linden Nursing Home in suburban Blackrock every night.

On Monday he will be at Dublin Castle, long the seat of British power in Ireland. There he will watch the inauguration of his successor, Erskine Childers, a 68-year-old Protestant whose father fought alongside Dev in the struggle for home rule.

Wards Off the Heat

With Los Angeles temperatures over the 100-degree mark for the third day, Spring DeHavilland could not resist the cool water of this fountain. The weather forecast for the next few days calls for more of the same and if the fad catches on, fountains might get a little crowded. (UPI)

Legislative Threat Is Discussed by Governor

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — The decision to sign or to veto a bill to reorganize state government will have to be made on whether "the goals of reorganization can better be achieved with or without this measure," says Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Bond told delegates to Missouri Boys State at Central Missouri State University Thursday night that "each of you will find decisions which similarly are very difficult for you."

Bond quoted from a newspaper editorial which said senators indicated that if Bond rejects the reorganization plan, he would never get another bill through the legislature.

Bond has criticized the bill for retaining many small agencies and not giving the governor enough freedom in consolidating the executive branch into 14 large departments.

He also opposed having Senate consent for his appointments other than the department directors. The bill was favored by the Senate and most of the Democrats in the House, but opposed by most of the Republicans in the House.

Bond, a Republican, said "The people of Missouri have high hopes for an effective reorganization plan to modernize and streamline state government. That objective has to be the measuring rod for my decision on the bill."

Earlier, in a talk to the minority business exposition at Kansas City, Bond said his administration is trying to give more state business to minority businesses.

"In the future minority businesses will receive notification of all bid lettings," Bond said.

In the past, he said, such firms were not invited to bid.

"In those situations where no bid is required," Bond said, "we will make an affirmative effort to aid minority businesses."

"It is not the intent of government to provide permanently protected markets for minority businesses," he said. "We are not trying to create another poverty program."

"The intent is to create an economic system in which each member of society is not only free to, but able to, pursue his interest without handicaps."

"However, to guarantee this, private business must come to the forefront and aid minority businesses in their infancy."

Supply Is Too Low

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Board of Trade has put restrictions on future transactions in soybeans and soybeans products after temporarily halting trading of the items.

The actions Thursday were in response to a government request that the board slow trading in soybean and soybean products futures.

In a telegram sent to board directors before Thursday's opening, the federal Commodity Exchange Authority cited reports that the soybean supply of Sept. 4 would be barely enough for two weeks.

The authority, an arm of the Agriculture Department that serves as a watchdog agency over commodity exchanges, said it was asking the directors to take action because "an emergency situation exists in soybean and soybean meal futures."

Traders at the Chicago exchange deal in futures contracts, buying and selling promises to deliver commodities in the future.

Those who have sold promises to deliver in upcoming months have been finding there aren't enough soybeans to cover.

Soybeans and soybean meal have figured prominently in a worldwide hunt for high-protein livestock and poultry feeds.

Prices of these items in the cash market have been rising steadily since last fall.

The highest price ever paid for soybean futures had been $4.41 in January 1948, and the high for soybean meal was $105 a ton, set in April 1954. Last January, both commodity futures exceeded these prices and reached new record levels.

Coed Enjoyed Year at Notre Dame

SMITHVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Even though she enjoyed being one of the first coeds at the University of Notre Dame last year, Kathy Donahue isn't going to return to South Bend, Ind., for her sophomore year.

Instead, she is going to Innsbruck, Austria, next year under a study program. Then she plans to return to Notre Dame.

Miss Donahue was one of 125 girls in the school's first coed freshman class; in addition, 240 female transfer students enrolled when the famed male school became a full-fledged coeducational institution.

Officials at Notre Dame "seemed to go out of their way to please the girls," she said. "If the girls asked for some improvement in the dorm, they would get it. If the boys asked, they might not."

The 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Donahue of Smithville said, "They remodeled the restroom facilities a little and the basement and put in washing and drying facilities."

For security, key card locks were installed on outside doors at the girls dormitories, Badin and Walsh halls.

At first she thought the teachers were "trying to get up competition between the boys and girls on grades," but then decided they were trying to encourage competition between individuals. They got it, and it was fierce, Miss Donahue said.

"The only complaint I have is the fact that the physical education classes are coeducational," she said. "Except for the shower room for the girls, there's been no provision for girls athletics. If we want gymnastics, we have to take boys gymnastics."

In high school, she had been undecided on a college until she found that Notre Dame was going coeducational. "I had always wanted to go. When I heard about it, I got my application in just barely before the deadline."

One reason she wanted to attend the school was its tradition. Everyone who graduated from Notre Dame seems so much closer than those from other schools."

She is the first of her family to go to the institution, which made her different from many on campus.

"It seems like half of the people you meet either their father went to Notre Dame or their grandfather did," Miss Donahue said. "You find this with both boys and girls."

Another thing that impressed her about the school famed for its athletic teams was the spirit on campus.

"When the basketball team was preparing to go to the National Invitational Tournament, the spirit was really high," she said. "The school band would march through the quadrangle, playing, and everyone would lean out the windows and listen."

Though undecided on a major, she said the tradition and spirit at Notre Dame made her sure she would return after her year abroad.

Expensive Work

Hilger Kids Got Their Land Back

By JIM KLAHN

Associated Press Writer
WOLF CREEK, Mont. (AP) — The four Hilger kids live by the rules of an earlier age.

Bryan, Susan, Dan and Amelia, who count 243 collective years on their dry 10,000 acres along one of the prettiest spots on the Missouri River, never did leave home.

Just as most of the country was going into the roaring 1920s, bad times struck the family ranch founded by Grandpa Nicholas Hilger in 1867. High-priced hay in the hard winter and a poor cattle market in the spring of 1920 forced the sale of the ranch. The Hilgers gave up their marrying years to reclaim the spread.

Through the 1920s, '30s and '40s, the Hilgers bought up what land they could from one-broke homesteaders, homesteaded themselves and swapped land to regain the land lost in that hard winter.

By the late '40s they owned some 5,000 acres and later leased 4,000 more to get the near-10,000-acre spread in the gates of the mountain country between Wolf Creek and Helena.

"Once a guy gets into this country it's hard to move away," said Bryan, 60. Although the countryside is dry, pathetically so this year, just downriver from the ranch the Missouri cuts through a narrow gorge with 2,000-foot, tree-lined limestone cliffs. It is a playground for the deer and the antelope.

As the Hilgers collected land, they built a herd of milk cows, then went to Herefords for slaughter. Given the rain-starved pasture, however, they could not count on raising commercial cattle and turned to raising champion polled Herefords.

"We didn't have much choice but to go for select stock," said Bryan. Since the 1950s they have concentrated on improving their herd and presently run about 85 cows and a few breeding bulls.

Amelia, known as Babe because at 55 she is the youngest of the four, said most of their sales are as registered stock to commercial breeders who want to improve their herds.

Why have they stuck together all these years? Bryan, slim and with an air of agelessness despite his white hair, pondered the question.

"We just go to working so hard building up the ranch we didn't have time to get married, I guess," he said. "By the time we got it all straightened out we were too old."

Ranch and house chores are split among the four. Babe and Bryan take care of the cattle. Dan, 65, handles the farming on 40 irrigated acres and Susan, 63, takes care of the house.

The Hilgers raise their own garden, make their own ice cream and churn their own butter. Dan estimated they spend about $45 a month in Helena for groceries, mostly flour, sugar and coffee.

"We'll have to sell," said Bryan, noting there's no one in sight to take over the operation.

They said they had considered relatives, but "ranching doesn't appeal to them."

Meantime the Hilger kids go on with their work.

With summer here and jobs hard to get, Pam Sylke thought it would be a neat idea to sell old-fashioned lemonade to make some money for school. Like a good citizen, Pam, 16, called city hall in San Francisco to inquire about a permit. That's when she found out her nickel and dime venture would cost her $7,500 for starters — just to sell freshly-made lemonade from the back of a truck. Pam, a recent arrival from West Allis, Wis., took up the venture along with two friends. (UPI)

Margot Kidder

Picture Success Not Dependent on 'Best Everything'

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Funny thing about movies. Actors search for The Right Script and insist on The Best Director and then the picture bombs. On the other hand, they sometimes do a little something just for the money and find themselves with a hit on their hands.

That's what's happened to Margot Kidder. Since she came down from Canada, she's been in nothing but flops — movies like "Gaily, Gaily" and "Quackser Fortune Has a Cousin In the Bronx" and TV shows like James Garner's Nichols.

Then, just because she was in love with the guy, she did "Sisters" for young director Brian DePalma. It turned out to be her first hit.

"It's nice to be in a hit," she says, "but it didn't start out that way. The script wasn't so hot but the idea was all in Brian's head. When we shot it, it was all very confusing. It never seemed like it was going to be much."

But it was fun to do, she says, because she was with friends. At the time, she and Brian were living together — that's over — and also in the cast was Jennifer Salt, one of her best friends.

To make it all sweeter, Margot has a piece of the picture. Since it's a big hit she may ultimately make a large hunk of money.

"If I make a fortune, which I doubt," she says, "I'd like to buy a ranch in British Columbia. I'm still nationalistic about Canada, as far as buying land is concerned."

She has a brother who is a working cowboy in British Columbia. There were five children in the Kidder family and theirs was an unusual childhood.

They grew up all over Canada, as their father, a mining engineer, moved around. She says he was more of an adventurer, hated working for big companies. He'd quit and move on and they moved with him.

"It was a good life," she says, "because it taught me to be adaptable and that's very good for an actress. Besides, we were thrown on our own resources. We'd move to another town and we wouldn't know anybody and my brother and I would play fantasy games."

When she was 12 they were living in a small mining town in Labrador.

"There were no women in the town," she says, "and all the 12-year-old girls were getting pregnant. My mother decided I had to get out so they went into debt to send me to a fancy boarding school in Toronto.

"Then I'd come home on vacations and get into knife fights in town — the English kids against the French kids. It was interesting.

Even though she was always something of a tomboy the idea of play-acting was always there. She says she often sat by the window and pretended she was frail and sickly. It was the start of her acting career.

She's very honest about what acting means to her. She says she enjoys the act of acting but likes the life style the acting gives her even more.

Seeks Master's Degree Even After Successful Career Materializes

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Call it rock, or rhythm and blues, or maybe just call it soul. Whatever it is, Carla Thomas does it, and does it as well or better than any girl singer around today.

She comes by her talent naturally. Carla is the daughter of Rufus Thomas, famous in Memphis as a disc jockey and famous wherever records are played as the originator of the Funky Chicken, among other items.

"I grew up with music in the house," Carla says. "And people like John Lee Hooker and Muddy Waters were always dropping in."

But, at first, she resisted music for herself, as so many children resist following in their parents' footsteps. She wanted an education and proceeded to get one. Majoring in English, she got her bachelor's degree from Tennessee State A & I and worked on her master's degree at Howard University.

It was tough to plug away at her books, because the siren song of singing was always there. As a college freshman, she had recorded one of her own songs — "Gee Whiz" — and it had become a million-seller. So there were always offers to sing, perform, do her musical thing.

"I was tempted to quit college," she says, "but I liked the college atmosphere. Now I'm glad I stayed. I'd like to finish, get my master's degree and perhaps do some work in the field of speech therapy, which interests me very much."

It may be impossible. Now that she's one of the queens of soul, the siren song is even louder than before. There are recording sessions, concerts and now TV.

She and her father are putting together a TV special, and it looks good for a network airing this fall. It will have many guest stars and one Carla particularly wants is Glen Campbell.

"I think Glen has a lot of soul," she says.

One thing their show will have, if and when it happens, is a lot of attention paid to the musical backgrounds behind the singers. Carla believes this is the current trend in recorded music, and she likes it.

"I believe Isaac Hayes started it with 'Shaft,'" she says. The Temptations new single has a minute of music before the singing starts. I know today a lot of people go into record stores and they say, 'I want to get that record with the good track,' instead of a particular song.

"It's great for a singer. Actually, I think this is a great time to be a girl singer."

She also is interested in acting and chances are that next season will see Carla making her dramatic debut on some TV show — assuming there is a next season.

"I think I can act," she says. "A singer has to be an actress — or she should be."

Don Galloway

Baffled

Susan Hampshire and Leonard Nimoy star in World Premiere: Baffled aired at 7 p.m. Tuesday on NBC, channels 3-4. Leonard Nimoy stars as an American race driver who sees things that haven't happened. Susan Hampshire convinces him he can save a woman (Vera Miles) in danger, and Jewel Blanch and Rachel Roberts are ladies who seem to change in age as we watch. There's even a rational explanation, for non-believers.

Star Trek Animated Version Will Emerge

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Most Star Trek fans — and there are millions of them around — threw up their tentacles in horror when they heard the news. NBC is going to have a Saturday morning animated half-hour cartoon show next fall, based on the Star Trek show.

This is in the nature of an advisory to them and the jist of it is: have faith.

The important thing to realize, gang, is that all is not lost. Gene Roddenberry, the man who created the show in the first place, is producing this new one so your pet show is in good hands.

Roddenberry even has moments of exultation about the new project. He thinks maybe there are some things about it which are good.

"We'll be able to do some things better via animation," he says. "We can show some curious life forms in a way that we never could if we had to use real actors."

The major drawback, as he sees it, is that the half-hour format is a severe limitation to the stories he wants to tell. Otherwise, he thinks it will measure up to the original reasonably well.

He says he got all the actors he wanted to do the voices, from the original company of the Star Ship Enterprise. He has the same story editor and the same technical consultant. And he plans to tell the same kind of story, with that one limitation, they must be told in 30 minutes.

"It is," he says, "a possible step toward a revival of the live show. If the animated show works, and gets good ratings, we may make it all the way back. Meanwhile, this is a way of getting some income. I'm not getting rich on the Star Trek reruns even though Paramount refers to them as 'our 79 jewels.'

Actually, he says, the success of the Star Trek reruns is the main reason the show has not come back live. Paramount is making so much money by selling the reruns which, of course, cost them nothing, that they are unwilling to give up that income. A new live series would mean the reruns bonanza would end.

Meanwhile, Roddenberry has other irons in the sci-fi fire. He has a firm order to make 13 episodes of a series called Questor, for network showing probably next January. This will star Robert Foxworth as an android robot in a modern setting. He also feels there is a possibility his pilot, Genesis II, may make it as a mid-season replacement.

He thinks Star Trek would still be on the air, if it had started a year later than it did. In that year, there was the first moon landing. He feels that the believability factor would have been increased and hence the show would have had a broader appeal.

TV SEASON POSTPONED?

Don't expect the new TV season to begin in September. Best opinion now is that, even if the writers' strike is settled tomorrow, the new shows can't possibly get on until October.

There are some shows shooting — the ones whose producers settled with the Writers Guild — but the network won't go for a semi-season, with some shows premiering in September and others later. They'll hold them all for a big push, in October or, if the strike isn't settled soon, November.

The Streets of San Francisco, the ABC series, is one that will start shooting on schedule, because it's a Quinn Martin show, and Martin has settled. There will be one important change in that show this coming season — the show will be shot entirely on location in San Francisco.

Favorite Pastime Is Cliche-Killing

By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. — Dave Madden, who is The Partridge Family's faithful Reuben Kincaid, is also a Cliche-Killer.

He decided to give up smoking, even though he likes to smoke and really didn't want to give it up.

"I always heard that you can't give it up unless you really want to and are ready to do it. I wasn't either so I decided to give up smoking and take a cliche along with me."

He succeeded. He also has succeeded, during the TV production hiatus (which may last as long as nine months, if the writers strike doesn't end soon) in gaining weight and growing a mustache.

"I always do both when I'm not working. Last year they very nearly let me keep the mustache," he says.

"I approached our executive producer Bob Claver at a party, when he had a couple of drinks in him, and asked him if I could keep the mustache. He said he thought it would be all right. But then I got word there had been a meeting and it was decided the mustache had to go.

"It intrigued me that they had a production meeting about my mustache so I asked what happened. I was told that it was decided the mustache made me look too sophisticated for the Kincaid image. I explained that there was nothing that would make this putty face look sophisticated and besides, sophistication is not something you grow between your nose and lips. It's something you either have or pretend to have. But I lost. I'll try again this year."

Dave has done some club dates, one-night stands, benefits and telethons since The Partridges finished filming for the season. "I also worked the Muhammad Ali, Los Angeles Laker and Sam Yorty Victory Parties," he says.

Dave says he would be happier going back to work, whenever that may be, if the series wasn't moving opposite All In the Family. Mention to him that it's a tribute to the show that ABC selected it to go against CBS' big gun and he says, "That's a tribute like a sergeant saying to a private, 'I've selected you to go ALL ALONE and take the pillbox up ahead.' Besides, it would be a greater tribute if the network had given us an order for 25 episodes, as they have in past years, rather than 13 episodes.

"When you ask them why they made the move, they answer with a question. What should we put there? Well, I'd schedule reruns of Our Miss Brooks, which would cost about $10 apiece to run and which could be advertised: 'See Eve Arden as a Child! Hear Richard Crenna Talk in a High Voice.'

Dick Kleiner Reports

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Even if the writers' strike gets settled, there may be more and bigger troubles ahead for the TV and movie industries. The directors' contract is up and it's been years since they've had a raise. The Directors Guild wants a lot more money for its members and another strike is quite possible.

Rock Hudson is busily working on his stage debut — he'll appear at the Huntington Hartford Theater here, opposite Carol Burnett. "I Do! I Do!" This is the musical version of "The Fourposter." Mary

Carol Burnett

Martin and Robert Preston created the Broadway roles of a man and wife at various stages in their long marriage.

Director Gower Champion has been working diligently with Rock on his singing and dancing. They go every day from 10 in the morning until 11 at night.

Speaking about movie stars on the stage, Debbie Reynolds is a huge hit in New York in "Irene." The reason she decided to do the musical, according to rumors, is because of that old debbil, financial need. Reports are that Harry Karl, her husband, has, like most businessmen, been suffering reverses with his shoe business lately. So Debbie tucked her dancing shoes under her arm and went back to work.

A new Warwick in town. Dionne's kid sister, Dede, has recorded the title song for the movie "A Touch of Class," and she has a touch of class herself.

Fredd Wayne, famous for his Benjamin Franklin one-man presentation, has collaborated with Los Angeles Times' entertainment editor, Charles Champlin, on a new musical, "The Apple of His Eye," which is headed for Broadway. Ray Stevens wrote the words and music.

Want to know what Hollywood people talk about at parties? Pretty much the same nutty things everybody does. Exhibit A: at a recent affair, I was chatting with Cissy and Bob Donner. Bob is a fine character actor, and Cissy, his wife, is the daughter of the great director, William Wellman.

The conversation was about peanut butter and how many ways it can be used. I told them how Doris Day had said she uses it when she cooks rack of lamb, but they had a better tip. Cissy says Fred MacMurray told them to spread it on corn-on-the-cob. They do, and it's great.

Mitzi Gaynor is doing many shows, these days, in small theaters-in-the-round in local shopping centers. She says they are the coming thing.

"The big downtown theaters are dying," Mitzi says. "It's a sociological thing — people are scared to go downtown. But these little spots are booming. I love playing them. It's such fun to be right among the people."

Lily Tomlin may be heading for the big screen. She's bought a book called "Maiden," about a 30-year-old virgin who comes to Los Angeles and rents an apartment in a singles-only spot. Lily's getting a screenplay written now and hopes to shoot it this spring or summer.

music manuscripts. Heretofore, all such submissions were returned to the sender, unopened. It seems he'll record again.

I am told that the big reason for Frank's decision to return to work is basically a monetary one. Recently, so the story goes, he was asked for financial help from a friend. Frank, whose generosity is legendary, found he didn't have the cash on hand to help his pal.

It isn't that Frank is in any financial trouble, merely that he found the cash flow was insufficient to finance his generous impulses. So going back to work is a means to that unselfish end.

Word from Florida, where George C. Scott is shooting "Day of the Dolphins," is that he has antagonized (something new?) the company by showing up with a huge entourage. He brought along his own make-up man, hairdresser, bodyguard, agent, etc., etc., and his gang eats together and they don't fraternize with the rest of the company.

What's more, according to reports from Florida, he and his wife, Trish Van Devere, had actual fights almost every day. One or both of them were forever missing from the set because of bruises.

At the screening of "Emperor of the North Pole," a film I found an anachronistic disappointment, I had a long talk with Ernest Borgnine about his part in the picture. It's all about hobos and railroad men and much of the action takes place on trains. Borgnine says he did all his own stunts in it, except for the bit of getting thrown off the train — "I drew the line at that."

He says at first he didn't like the idea of walking on top of moving trains. When he reported for duty, director

Robert Aldrich said, "Ernie, have you ever been on top of a moving train before?"

"No, I haven't."

"Well, there's a train. Get on it."

And Ernie did and got his feet wet right away. He says there was one hairy moment. He was standing between two cars, and he momentarily slipped as he looked for the camera.

"I broke out in a cold sweat," Borgnine says.

Jerry Kramer, the ex-Green Bay Packer, has acquired the rights to the life story of his old coach, Vince Lombardi, from Vince's widow. Supposedly, Kramer has a deal with George C. Scott, who is interested in playing Lombardi.

Speaking of Disney reminds me of a story Wolfgang (Wooly) Reitherman, the studio's animation director, told me about Walt Disney. Walt listened to some music composer Leigh Harline had written for a film and he didn't like what he heard. They had a long discussion about the score and Harline began to get upset.

"Look, Walt," he finally said. "Could you do any better?"

"No," Walt said, "but you can."

Alan Carr, who manages Ann-Margret, held a birthday-housewarming in Hillhaven Lodge, the house he bought which used to be owned by big stars like Ingrid Bergman and Kim Novak. The party was wild, with the wildness led by the host who appeared in a patchwork caftan and, during the evening, changed six times — into six different-colored caftans.

Ann-Margret and Roger Smith were there and they said they had almost bought Hillhaven Lodge.

"But," Ann-Margret said, "it didn't have enough land for us — we have our pets to consider, you know."

They have so many cats that Roger has built a cat apartment house outside for their feline friends. It has private rooms for each of their eight cats.

"We have so many pets," Roger says, "that we keep a veterinarian on a retainer."

Cass Elliott — Mama Cass — attended the party in a wheelchair. She recently had knee surgery. She moaned that the accident wasn't the least bit glamourous — "I slipped and fell on some water in the kitchen."

I tried to comfort her by saying that she could still sing while in the wheelchair.

"Yes," she said, "but I can't even get myself a drink of water."

Actor-Novelist Plans to Write Himself Into a Film

By JOAN CROSBY

STUDIO CITY, Calif. — Roger Bowen had hopped into Los Angeles for a day from the San Francisco home he and his family will occupy until July 1, at which point, they may be homeless.

No, this is not a sad story. It's just a confused one. Roger, fresh from his memorable portrait of terribly, terribly top-drawer Hamilton Majors joining The Brian Keith Show (The Little People) next season.

Rather than commute from San Francisco to Honolulu (he commuted to Los Angeles for Arnie), Roger sublet his home as of July 1 so that he and his family could move to Hawaii for the length of filming. Only now there is that ogre, the writer's strike, and filming has been postponed.

"They tell me I play an allergist named Spencer Chaffee, who shares office space with Brian Keith. I'm going to be a by-the-book doctor as opposed to his sport-shirted, casual 'this-is-going-to-hurt' doctor. I'll be dedicated and on a one-man campaign to eliminate allergies from the world. The character is also very much of a book man. If he gets involved in a catamaran race, about which he knows nothing, he heads for the library and studies enough to beat Brian in the race. If he dates Shelley Fabares, he goes to the library to get books on courtship, then does all the proper things, like candy and flowers."

Roger paused. "He also is a graduate of dear old Otterbein College and wherever he goes, he takes his Otterbein mug and he sings the Otterbein songs. In other words, he's a fool — but not completely."

Then Roger smiled. "Of course, you realize that all of this may change. But this is the way it was told to me and the way I'd like it to be. Maybe if you print it, they'll get along with it this way."

Since Arnie went off, Roger has done two movies, "Steelyard Blues" and "Wicked, Wicked" (he doesn't think either one is too exciting but liked some of his work in the Steelyard flick), appearances on Temperatures Rising and The Paul Lynde Show, a Movie of the Week, Playmates, several commercials and a syndicated show, George, starring Marshall Thompson, in Switzerland.

Stage-trained and stage-oriented, Roger misses the theater and hopes to get back to it sometime soon.

"I missed a chance to be in 'That Championship Season' with ACT in San Francisco because I was in Florida doing a commercial. But I have my own project in mind. It's an 1899 play about Sherlock Holmes by William Gillette and I want so much to bring it back."

Between all these events, Roger, the world's foremost unpublished novelist, is working on his seventh novel. "I have my eye on the possibility of a film for this one, which is kind of science-fiction. If no one produces me in Holmes maybe I can write myself into a film this way."

HOPE HITS 70

The idea of hitting his 70th birthday doesn't bother Bob Hope at all. He looks a good 20 years younger (he takes long nightly walks around his Toluca Lake home and he eats sensibly). He also comes from a long-lived family. Bob's grandfather died one month short of his 100th birthday and while in his 90's regularly rode his bike to a nearby pub.

Finally Finding a Way Off That Rock in the Stream

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — For Terry Carter, playing Sgt. Joe Broadhurst on NBC's Mystery Movie: McCloud is one more big rock in the stream of life.

The handsome actor is a Brooklyn native, who grew up wanting to be a doctor but he thinks that was mostly his family's wish, not his. When he went to college (Northeastern in Boston) he switched to pre-law and did attend law school for a while. But he got interested in acting in college and eventually realized that was what he really wanted to do.

"In my second year in law school," he says, "they were training us in corporation law. I completely lost interest. So I left and began studying to become an actor."

He got lucky, after a string of off-Broadway roles. He had the lead opposite Eartha Kitt in "Mrs. Patterson," and then opposite Sally Ann Howes in the musical, "Kwamina." He believes that production, in 1961, was ahead of its time — its interracial love story caused problems and the climactic kiss between the principals was dropped finally.

"After 'Kwamina,'" he says, "I was getting nowhere. I was like a man crossing a stream — I got to a big rock but there were no other big rocks ahead. I was afraid I would fall in the water."

So he took a job as newscaster on a Boston television station and he believes he was the first black newscaster in the country. He spent three years on that job.

"Then I had a choice," he says. "CBS offered me a network job. And, through my wife, who is Italian, I had an opportunity to do an Italian movie."

He decided to go back to acting and hasn't regretted it. Four years ago, he came to Hollywood and shortly got the part on McCloud, playing Dennis Weaver's policeman-friend.

While waiting for the writers' strike to end, so he can go back to work on McCloud, he's busy. He's doing civic works and writing and working on deals to produce his own movies.

And he's also doing a lot of thinking about black films. He thinks some are good but most are junk "like 'Super Fly,' which glorified dope pushers." He believes it's good for black youngsters to see blacks in various capacities but he has reservations about those capacities that are being shown.

"Mostly," he says, "the black stars on TV are detectives and they use only their guns and their muscles. I'd like to see a black star playing a role in which he had to use his brains — like a lawyer or a doctor."

He also feels that not enough attention is paid to the fact that, besides influencing children, movies influence adults, too. For civilization, that's another big rock in the stream.

Harper Is Still a Loser As She Regards Herself

Valerie Harper

By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. — Valerie Harper has a new hairdo, a new house, another Emmy, a spot in the titles as The Mary Tyler Moore Show prepares for another season and her motion picture debut coming up (unless you count the fact that she was a chorus dancer in "L'il Abner").

Valerie has just completed a role in "Freebie and the Bean," which stars Alan Arkin and James Caan. She plays Arkin's Mexican wife. When she was offered the role, characteristically, Valerie suggested that the part should be played by a real Mexican. She even recommended three actresses.

However, it was Valerie the producers wanted and it was Valerie they got. In the story, she plays a wife who may or may not have been unfaithful to her husband. The script is not specific.

On the set Valerie took her own private poll and discovered that all the men figured the wife had been unfaithful and all the women thought that she had been faithful.

Valerie herself is a faithful type. For instance, she says there is "no actual piece of paper" between her and the producers of The Mary Tyler Moore Show. "It's just a verbal thing. There's no reason for me to leave. I'm happy where I am. And I can do other work in my six months off."

She says she really has no desire to have her own show. "It's wonderful to be the second banana and have the jokes."

Since The Mary Tyler Moore Show premiere, Valerie, who has always been attractive, and

Commercials Subsidize Lennie-of-All-Trades

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. — Lennie Weinrib is a Lennie-of-all-trades — he's a comedian, an actor, a writer, a producer. In this era of specialization, he's out of step, and that's the way he wants it.

"People have always told me," Lennie says, "that I had to specialize to get along in the entertainment business, that I'd never get anywhere if I kept on writing and being a comic and producing and everything. But I enjoyed doing everything and I think I'm proving that it can be done."

At the moment, he's doing a little bit of a lot of things, but the big thing, at least financially, is his commercials business.

He does many commercials. You hear his voice selling dozens of different products. It's his key to independence.

"My commercials," he says, "subsidize my other things. They enable me to spend, say, four months writing a script if I feel like it or putting together movie and TV deals. I work my tail off all day on those commercials so I can afford to do anything else I want to do."

Currently he has several things in the works which, he says, "look good."

"Most probably," he says, "the first thing that will happen is a TV pilot which looks pretty good for January. It's called Zip Zip Zip, and it's a situation comedy, a Sgt. Bilko kind of thing set in a post office."

Weinrib is a Brooklynite who moved to Los Angeles with his family when he was 11. He says he comes from a lower middle class family, one of those typical groups in which it was hoped that the son and heir would enter a noble profession. So Lennie grew up planning to be a dentist.

He was a good student, through his junior and senior high school years, but still he wasn't a model student.

has additionally turned glamorous and has lost weight. Except for the departure of "fat jokes," she says Rhoda hasn't changed that much.

"She's still a loser. That's how she regards herself. Most humans sadly don't appreciate themselves. Or they overly appreciate themselves to compensate."

Valerie is a generous actress, in her praise for others. For instance, she recalls Lucille Ball as "an angel from God."

When Lucy was starring on Broadway in "Wildcat," Valerie was one of the chorus dancers. Most Broadway theaters have fairly grubby accommodations for the stars, to say nothing of the chorus girls. "But she really cared and she got the dressing rooms really cleaned up for us." (Lucy once was a Broadway chorus girl.)

Valerie says she also has been lucky with her leading men: Peter Falk, with whom she worked in a Columbo segment, and Arkin, with whom she worked in the film.

But then, the feeling around the set is that these people can easily return the compliment.
